HITLER REACHES FOR RUMANIA, U. S. PENALIZES GERMAN GOODS

BOOSTS DUTY ON IMPORTS AS OF APRIL 23

Increase In Custom Levies To Amount To Economic Blockade of Nazis.

25 PER CENT INCREASE

Treasury Department Takes Action, Won't Call It Aggression Reprisal.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The United States government today imposed drastic economic penalties on Nazi Germany.

The penalties came in the form of countervailing duties on German products which will add heavily to customs levies.

The action extended the trade "blacklisting" of Germany by the American government and, so far as this country is concerned, amounts to an "economic blockade" which President Roosevelt has urged against the Nazis.

Follows Denunciation.

Announcement of this government's action came from the treasury department and followed significantly on the heels of an official American denunciation of Germany's seizure of Czechoslovakia.

The action of the treasury department today was taken when it was determined that virtually all German goods shipped to the United States, on which duties can be declared, had been financed through official German government subsidies.

Effective April 23.

The treasury through its customs bureau, beginning April 23, will impose an additional penalty duty averaging 25 per cent against all German goods entering this country. If it should be determined that any item has not been exported by Germany to the United States by means of a subsity, the penalty duty will be waived on that product.

Treasury officials said they had acted on the advice of Attorney General Frank Murphy. They refused to say, however, if the action was taken at this time as a reprisal measure against German aggression in central Europe.

The treasury had been investigating the manner in which German goods are shipped here for some time and had requested the legal advice of the justice department last November. Murphy's

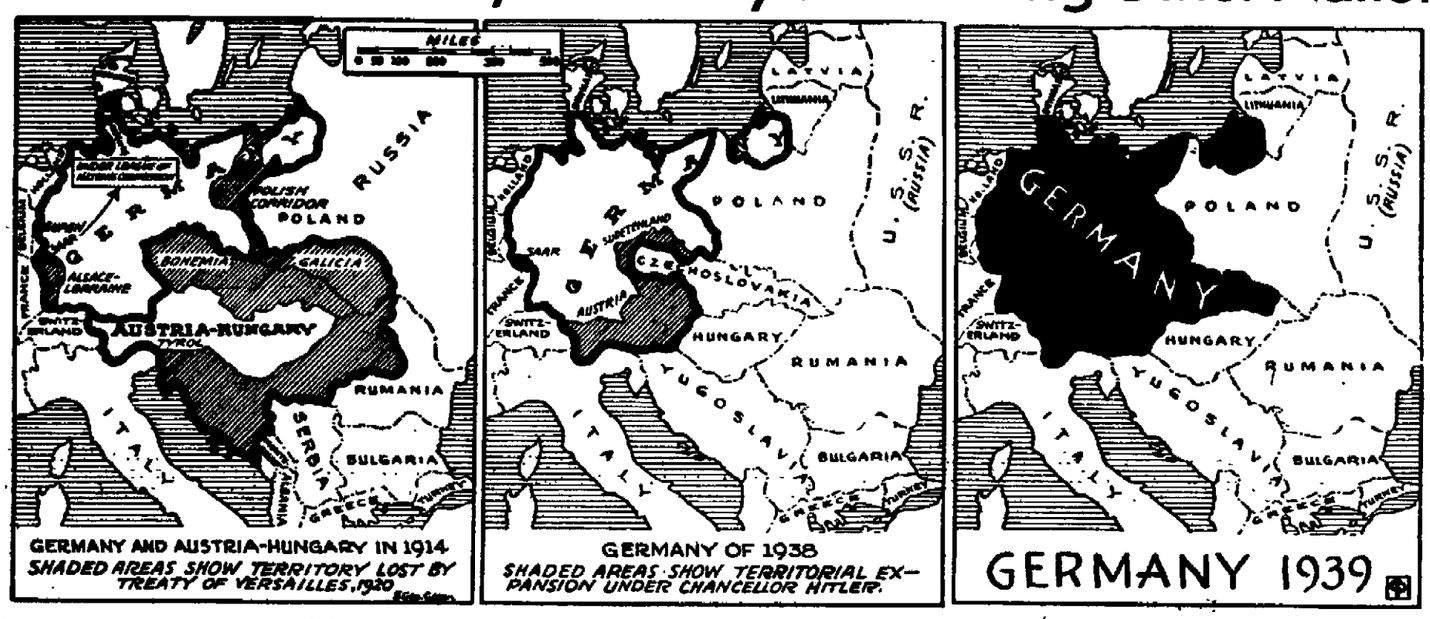
1914–1939: Germany Grows By Swallowing Other Nations



GERMANY AND AUSTRIA-HUNGARY IN 1914 — SHADED AREAS SHOW TERRITORY LOST BY TREATY OF VERSAILLES, 1920

GERMANY OF 1938 — SHADED AREAS SHOW TERRITORIAL EXPANSION UNDER CHANCELLOR HITLER.

GERMANY 1939

The three maps at the top show how Germany has grown and how other nations have vanished. Germany today is 25 per cent larger than the Germany of 1914 and has 33 per cent more population. Then it had 202,780 square miles and 67,812,000 people. After the Versailles treaty it had 181,500 square miles and 60,000,000 people. Today there is no Austria and only a tiny Hungary. Also, there is no Czechoslovakia. But Germany has 258,263 square miles and a population estimated at 81,000,000.

Lower picture, a Central Press radiophoto, shows Adolf Hitler, new master of what was once Czechoslovakia, reviewing his honor guard in front of Hrdcany castle in Prague. But Prague had no cheers for Hitler.

Sweeping German economic proposals to Rumania cast the shadow of the swastika further over southeastern Europe today as the democracies bitterly condemned the Nazi conquest of Czechoslovakia in the strongest stand they yet have made against Adolf Hitler since his rise to power.

A Rumanian legation spokesman in London asserted his government had received Hitler's demands that it submit to complete economic subjugation by Germany in return for Nazi assurances of Rumanian territorial integrity.

Rumania would be expected to cease building up her industries and turn, instead, to agriculture. She would export exclusively to Germany her grain, oil, lumber, cattle and foodstuffs.

Confronted with this danger, King Carol of Rumania presided during the night at a lengthy session of his crown council and general staff in Bucharest. The Rumanian foreign minister, however, declared the German proposals did not constitute an ultimatum.

Acting swiftly on the line of British prime minister's slashing attack on Germany for wiping Czechoslovakia from Europe's map, the British government:

1. Told its ambassador in Berlin to inform Germany that Britain regarded the invasion of Czechoslovakia as "a complete repudiation of the Munich agreement," and "without legal basis."

Cabinet Called.

2. Called the cabinet into extraordinary session to give immediate consideration to the European situation which, Chamberlain has acknowledged, has shattered British conciliation efforts.

The French government, similarly aroused:

1. Sent a note to Berlin, paralleling British action, declaring France did not recognize German occupation of Czechoslovakia as legitimate.

2. Gave Premier Edouard Daladier a vote of confidence in the chamber of deputies on his demand for secret and virtually dictatorial powers aimed primarily at building up French military power.

3. Called home Robert Coulondre, French ambassador to Berlin.

Britain yesterday sent similar instructions to her envoy to Germany, Sir Nevile Henderson.

In Berlin, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering announced formation of a new air force command for Germany's new eastern domains, a move officially described as "a tremendous strengthening of the German air force."

OFFICER'S GUN KILLS 'JOYRIDER'

Zanesville Policeman Shoots As Youth Flees Stolen Car After Wild Chase.

(By United Press)

ZANESVILLE, O.—A policeman's bullet killed Edward Eugene O'Brien, 21, of Akron, while he and a companion were "joyriding" in a stolen automobile early today.

Patrolman Henry Ritchason of the Zanesville night force shot O'Brien, allegedly when the youth resisted arrest.

Harry Andrew Dillon, 20, of Zanesville, who had been riding with O'Brien in the car stolen from in front of a beer parlor here, surrendered to officers.

"I shot twice and got him in the left side when I thought he was reaching for a gun to resist arrest," Patrolman Ritchason told his superiors.

Ritchason and Patrolman Erwin Tate were in their cruiser getting a description of the stolen car when the owner, Daniel A. Pickenbaugh, shouted: "There goes my car now!"

During the chase, the stolen car was driven down an alley and either stalled or was stopped intentionally. Dillon surrendered but O'Brien was said to have tried to escape.

PLEA DENIED

Norwalk Judge Refuses to Free Mrs. Schlett on Bond.

NORWALK—(AP)—Judge E. G. Martin today denied Mrs. Coletta Schlett, charged with murdering her husband, a hearing on her application for freedom under bond.

Sitting silently in the tense courtroom, the pretty 28-year-old defendant heard the jurist declare she had been indicted by a grand jury of "unusually fine" personnel.

Also overruled was a motion by Defense Attorney Thomas Murray of Sandusky for permission to examine publicly the 43 witnesses who testified before the grand jurors. Included would have been Harold Hastings, 35-year-old neighbor of the defendant, also charged with first degree murder in the death of her husband, run down by an automobile Jan. 27.

'God Ended Malady,' Woman Says Who Craved 20 Meals Daily

(By United Press)

KANSAS CITY—Mrs. Dorothy Barber, 20, wife of a WPA worker, believed today that a miracle had delivered her from a slow agonizing death where medical science had failed.

Physicians at General hospital, who for two weeks had observed her slowly eating herself to death, unable to diagnose her strange malady, neither agreed nor disagreed with her belief. They said her apparent recovery was simply unexplainable.

Mrs. Barber said it was a manifestation of God's power and the power of faith.

"Every night, when the lights are turned off in the ward," she said, "I pray to God to help me recover from my awful appetite. God has heard my prayers and has helped me. I really believe that's what has cured me."

Her case not only had confounded physicians here but had drawn the attention of the medical profession world-wide. She was admitted to the hospital when she appeared to the clinic and said she ate ravenously 20 times a day but was never satisfied. Though she consumed enough food to feed a family of 10, she was losing weight and strength.

Numerous tests were made but all failed to aid doctors in diagnosing her case. They put her on a 24-hour fast and she cried for food. It did not lessen her constant craving. But early this week, to the surprise of physicians, her appetite began gradually to diminish. Today she was eating normally and was satisfied.

RELIEF IN SIGHT

Cold Snap Due to End Sunday With Rising Temperatures.

Mansfield's second snowfall in two days disappeared under a bright sun today and the weatherman predicted that relief from the two-day cold snap will arrive by Sunday.

The temperature last night dropped to 15 degrees above zero, one degree under the low for the preceding night. Yesterday the maximum reading was 25 degrees while at noon today the mercury was 24.

Snowfall last night and early today measured .70 of an inch and brought the total fall for the past two days to an inch and a half.

The forecast was for fair and cold tonight and fair and warmer Sunday. Average temperature for the past 24 hours was 20 degrees, or 18 degrees below normal.

'Park-as-you-please' System Won't Work, Fostoria Learns

(By Associated Press)

FOSTORIA—Fostoria's "park-as-you-please" ordinance appeared headed for the waste-basket today—four days after it was born.

City officials agreed almost unanimously the "on your honor" plan "just won't work."

They had observed automobiles parked at angles both acute and obtuse, others parallel to the curb, at times two deep, and some machines "parked" near the center of the street.

Councilmen abolished all existing regulations last Tuesday, putting motorists on their honor. The plan will expire in 60 days, to be renewed if found feasible.

"It's the merchants who are wrecking it," asserted City Service Director Frank Blazer. "Storekeepers and clerks who formerly left their cars outside the restricted area, now park them on Main street all day. It won't last long."

A Chamber of Commerce spokesman, Groceryman A. R. Weaks, declared the plan hadn't had a fair trial.

"We're going to carry it to all the civic organizations and woman's clubs," he said. "It's a matter of patriotism. The other towns around here are taking business away from us by ignoring violations where farmers and other buyers are concerned. We just went a step farther. We wiped the slate clean."

Of the total cost, it is estimated that the property owners share will be $19,736 while the city's share is figured at $5,064. Three of the proposed projects are to be done on a contract basis and the other two are set up as WPA projects.

Berg said that the projects had been selected from a list of 12

The board indicated following that meeting that no formal offer had been made to Compton, but that he was asked to consider whether he would accept the presidency.

BERLIN: Hitler Fires Back At British, U. S. Condemnation

BERLIN—A Teutonic "Monroe doctrine" for central Europe was proclaimed by Germany today as Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's angry answer to British and American condemnation of his "protectorate" over Czechoslovakia.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, who last night bitterly denounced Hitler for "unbroken promises," was accused by the German government of "extreme prejudice" and Sumner Welles, acting United States secretary of state who labelled the Czech affair as "wanton lawlessness," was branded as an "idle dreamer."

The world might just as well realize, it was pointed out, that Nazi Germany is acting now "just as the United States acted in

U. S.: Would Broaden Roosevelt Powers To Deal With Dictators

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The state department announced today that the United States will send Germany an official note, which is expected to reassert American abhorrence of Nazi absorption of Czechoslovakia.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Administration supporters in the senate backed up the state department's condemnation of Germany's march into Czechoslovakia today with proposals that the president be given greater freedom to deal with the dictator nations.

They gave unqualified approval to the statement made yesterday by Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, that "wanton lawlessness" and "arbitrary force" were "threatening world peace and the very structure of modern civilization.

Those senators contended, however, the Welles declaration was puzzling in that it merely re-affirmed previous government policy. Typical of these expressions was this comment by Senator George (D., Ga.), a member of the foreign relations committee:

"The attitude of the government already had been made clear, especially regarding Hitler. It is per

STATE TAKES NEW STAND ON SEWER SURVEY

Demands City Hire Recognized Sanitary Engineers to Check System.

NOT INTERESTED BEFORE

Change In Attitude Calls For New Legislation, Special Council Session.

The State Department of Health today had reversed its stand taken several weeks ago when it verbally agreed on approving a survey of the sanitary sewer system by competent engineers and demanded that city officials hire a recognized consulting firm of sanitary engineers to complete the project.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter said that he had been informed by the state department that it would approve only work done by a preferred list of sanitary engineers. This he said, was a reversal of the stand taken several weeks ago when Bruce McDill, chief sanitary engineer, who was in Mansfield, told Hunter that the state was not so much interested in who did the work as long as it met with the approval of the board.

Gave City Three Choices.

At that time, the mayor said, McDill pointed out that the state department would be satisfied if the work was done either by the city engineering staff, a consulting engineer, or a consulting firm.

The change in attitude by the health department, Hunter said, would call for a special meeting of city council, probably Tuesday night, to approve new legislation authorizing the service director to enter into a contract with a consulting firm to handle the job.

Council at its meeting March 7 authorized the hiring of a consulting engineer to conduct the survey and set aside $2,000 from a special PWA fund to pay for it.

Ready To Hire Firm.

Hunter said he already had negotiated with a Cleveland firm of consulting engineers who had agreed to make the survey for $2,500, which would necessitate a change in the amount of funds set up for the survey.

The firm agreed to hire Mansfield engineers to do the work for the city and assume full responsibility of conducting the survey before the June deadline set by council.

Hunter said the special meeting was imperative so the survey could get under way in order to have it completed and approved by the state department of health so a bond issue could be sought at the August primaries.

opinion was transmitted to the treasury this morning and the order imposing countervailing duties was imposed several hours later.

It was explained that Germany has been buying various goods from American importers at 33 per cent above the prevailing American market price. The importer then has been given a credit in German banks, and was permitted to use this credit to buy various German goods for shipment into the United States.

"Thus burdensome import restrictions are imposed upon American goods and at the same time substantial subsidies are bestowed upon German goods exported to this country," Murphy's opinion said.

Imposition of the penalty duties will add another heavy burden on German goods coming into the United States since all German products, except those on the free trade list, already have been subject to regular tariffs.

Through its trade agreements and most favored-nation treatment virtually all other countries in the world are granted some reduction in tariffs by this government.

JUNEAU, Alaska—(AP)—An old-time prospector claimed a $1,000 reward today as the bodies of six persons who died in one of Alaska's worst commercial airline crashes were brought back to the point from where they started to meet death on an isolated island, February 12.

The car turned over in a ditch. Investigating officers said the son appeared intoxicated when they reached the accident scene.

A Farmer's Diary

The Angry Muskrat.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I WAS returning from trimming up a dead hickory tree that blew down last summer, when at the edge of the swamp in the pasture, I saw an animal moving. It was larger than a rat, and raised up on its haunches to look around, then started forward again. I walked slowly to get a better view. Then, with a rush he attacked me—and I saw it was a muskrat. He jumped at me with all his ferocious might, placed his forepaws against my pants and with his gnawing teeth, began to tear my overalls to shreds.

I was surprised and startled. I had never known that this common little animal would battle with a man. But he tore at me like mad, and all my efforts to run gracefully away, or to elude him, were of no avail. He kept darting back to take another rip at my trousers leg.

His bare scaly tail, his dark brown fur, and his threatening, snapping teeth were unmistakably those of a muskrat. I had my ax upon my shoulder, but even in my present plight, I felt cowardly to use it. If he would fight and I run away, we might both meet again another day.

Finally though, his ripping claws and tearing teeth were dangerously near my skin, so I placed my ax down between my ankle and the little fighter, and heard the claws and teeth grit hard upon the steel.

With both hands upon the ax handle, I gave him a flip, and threw him bodily six feet away toward the swamp. He turned tail, then, and vanished into the long grass.

I have wondered, since, what awful domestic crisis had driven him forth in such a rage. He had an awful temper, and I admired his courage, but he had better not try such tactics on a hunter.

FEWER EVENTS HEAD SOCIAL CALENDAR

Leaders Get Brief Respite This Week; Saturday and Sunday Filled With Functions to Entertain All.

By FRANCES E. GENSLEY

FROM the looks of things, you distracted program chairmen, and busy club hostesses will have a chance to relax a little next week, as the calendar which lays on the desk now is indicative of "slim pickings" for the socialites. However, if you all feel as I do perhaps a week of relaxation will be a general tonic to slumpy spirits.

Looking Over the Week's Calendar.

Activities for the week-end are interesting, though, as all the younger set turns out for the Chi Sigma annual St. Patrick benefit dance at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. The affair, which is tonight, will be played by Tommy Van's orchestra, and from mid-week reports of the busy ticket committee there will be a real crowd.

But even if you don't care for dancing (and who doesn't like to dance?) you will be interested in two social functions planned for Sunday, and certainly you will be wishing that you could be up in Lakewood this afternoon to offer best wishes to Miss Martha Fichter and George H. Bender who are being married at the Detroit Avenue Methodist Episcopal church. But to get back to Sunday. One of the first social functions of the season to be planned by the Raemelton Riding club is a breakfast in the morning hours, while during the afternoon Beta Kappa Tau will entertain members and pledges with a tea in the club rooms.

James Bailey and Mrs. L. B. Hamilton, officers of the riding club, are in charge of the breakfast which will be served at 10 a. m. at the Susie Janis home. So much for Saturday and Sunday. Let's get along with the things to come.

Monday.

Monday, always a poor day for club meetings, has lost this week particularly to the presence of Louis Bromfield who will be the final speaker for the series of six lectures being sponsored jointly by the University and Rotary clubs at the Mansfield Senior high school. In spite of the fact that several groups have planned to postpone or omit their Monday evening meetings though, we stiill have a few things to look forward to.

For one thing Delta Theta Tau will be welcomed to the home of Miss Louise Palmer, West First street, when a regular meeting is conducted, and Mrs. A. F. Remy will hostess the Round Table club at the Women's Club at 2:30 p. m.

In addition to the annual inspection ceremony planned by the Ruth chapter, Order of Eastern Star, at the Masonic temple, the Grace guild of the First M. E. church will entertain at the church with a covered-dish dinner and guest party.

The Young Women's Missionary guild of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church will meet with Mrs. Clifford Heaton on Vennum avenue, and Mrs. Earl Schuler, North Walnut street, will be hostess to the Daughters of Ruth class of St. Luke's Lutheran church.

Tuesday.

No, we aren't making any mistake when we tell you that the Monday Study club is meeting with Mrs. Russell Gimbel and Mrs. Dwight Weir on Tuesday. The members decided to hear Mr. Bromfield and have a program too. It couldn't be done in one evening so they moved their meeting date up one day.

Girls in Alpha Pi Sigma will be in regular session at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, and they will be plenty busy making plans for their dance late next month. The Misses Esther and Katherine Pfaff will be the hostesses for the social hour to follow.

Really Tuesday looks like the best day of the week. The Central M. E. guild will gather with Mrs George Sherman on Arlington avenue, and the E-T club will be in session with Mrs Edna Herring on Rae avenue. Probably there will be some talk about the excitement of Saturday night's dance when the Chi Sigma actives gather at the hotel, but mainly they'll be putting the pledges through their paces before they are formally initiated the end of this month.

Paula Brunk will entertain the Junior Garden club at her home on Vennum, and the American Legion Bridge club will gather at the home. The Linneaus Garden club will be guests of Mrs. Marion Brinkerhoff, and the American Novel group will be entertained by Miss Helen Myers.

Mrs. W. E. Wygant will entertain the Sorosis members at the club, and any number of other things will take place during the afternoon and evening. The Pocahontas lodge will meet in regular session at the Eagle hall, while the C. L. of C. has a gathering in the club rooms. Among the social groups will be the Debonnaire club, Navajo, Semper Fidelis, Sense and Nonsense and Fortnightly Thimble.

A couple of church groups—the Amoma class, and the Star of Hope class—have arranged regular session, and the Charity club will meet with Mrs. John Burns. There will also be a session of the Charles Dick Camp auxiliary and the Frances Willard W. C. T. U.

Wednesday.

A number of Mansfield's major study clubs will have their meetings on Wednesday. Mrs. Charles Kuntz will open her home to the Student club members when Mrs. M. L. Smith assists with the regular session of the club. Mrs. Harry Cave, Blymyer avenue, will be hostess to the Wednesday Study club, and she and Mrs. Henry Sanford will present a program on marionettes.

In the evening Miss Martha King, West Second street, will entertain the Philomathian club, and the Conversational club members will lunch with Mrs. Paul Endriss. The Sappho members will also have a meeting at the Women's Club when Mrs. J. L. Stevens entertains.

A regular meeting of the Women's Relief corps will be held at the Memorial building, and Mrs. Larry Powell will be hostess to the May-Be club members. There will be a luncheon session of the E. L. K. Sewing circle with Mrs. Paul Weir, Edgewood road, the same afternoon.

When the members of the Women of the Moose gather at the home Mrs. Clara Johns, chairman of the social service committee, will be in charge of a program on social service work, and a talk on first aid will be presented.

Thursday.

The activity of Tuesday and Wednesday slumps decidedly in the face of Thursday, and there are only a few important events planned. Nearly 100 members of the Mansfield Federation of Women are expected to attend the luncheon-bridge which will be held at the Club on Thursday afternoon. This is the last strictly social function of the season preceding the annual meeting later in the spring.

Mrs. A. H. Lewis will hostess the Timely Topics club, a study group, at her Glenwood boulevard home, and the Mary-Martha Bible club will be in session at the home of Mrs. O. O. Brenner. Two social groups—the Edgmere club and the Jolly Dozen Euchre club—have set sessions.

Miss Doris Boyce will hostess the first group, while the others go to the home of Mrs. Louis Hamaker. The Women's Aid of the Pennsylvania Railroad will have a session with Mrs. Franklin Haupt, and the First circle of the Park Avenue Baptist church will have luncheon at the home of Mrs. E. M. Alderson.

Friday.

Two of the leading study groups in the city will gather on Friday for regular sessions. The Art Study club will enjoy a sealed program at the Women's Club when Mrs. Frank Leavitt entertains. The same day Mrs. John Conard, Woodward avenue, will be hostess to the Cosmopolitan club.

Two of the Baptist church circles will assemble the same day. Circle Two will be entertained by Mrs. Avery Dise, and Circle Three will meet with Mrs. Clair Casto. Several social groups including the Nightlark club, the Coterie club, L'Allegro club and the Gardenia club have planned meetings, too.

Luncheon will be served to members of the Red Cross Production unit at the home of Mrs. Fred Elder, 82 Arlington avenue, when Mrs. Merl Smith and Mrs. John Pierce assist. So with only a couple of events on Saturday we can look at the week as being almost complete.

Saturday.

For the first time this season members of the Review of Reviews club are planning a guest party. The affair will be held Saturday afternoon at the Women's Club, and Mrs. E. K. Tingley and Miss Hester Robinson are the hostesses. The organization is a monthly study club.

The other meeting scheduled is that of the La Petite club with Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Stafford, Woodland avenue.

PLAY RUMMY.

Rummy was played recently by 13 members and one guest, Mrs. Herbert Smith, when members of the Jolly Times club were entertained at the home of Mrs. Charles Daughterty, Newman street. Card prizes were awarded to Miss Edna Horn and Mrs. Ray Heichel, and Mrs. Joseph Stone won the floral fund prize. A St. Patrick theme was carried out in the serving of luncheon. The next meeting will be with Miss Lucille Beck, West Fifth street, March 30.

A hard time party at the East Mansfield United Presbyterian church recently was attended by 35 persons. Mrs. Lewis Miller was in charge of the entertainment, and a luncheon was served by Mrs. J. P. Mrs. Koozer served a lunch at the close of the program from a table decorated with green appointments. Games were played and Mrs. Elmira Caugherty and Mrs. Esther Cleckner won the prizes. The date for the next meeting will be announced later.

With the approach of spring regular meetings are being resumed by this group, and the next session will be March 31 at the home of Mrs. John Hattery. The program for the season, which reached the desk just today, gives some hope of warm days to come in spite of the unseasonable snows.

The next regular meeting of the council will be held on March 31.

During the program, Mrs. H. W. Gibbs gave a talk on conservation and the beautification of highways. Mrs. Walter Willis presented a paper entitled, "Wild Life and the Need for Restoration." Mrs. Derl Arehart concluded the program with a talk on "Annual Climbers," which she illustrated with pictures. Mrs. F. E. Ross will have the meeting of March 31 at her home on Chevy Chase road.

—Advice—

Reluctant Suitor Irksome

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For over two years we've been going together. He is 34 and I am 20. I love him and he always says he loves me but he keeps putting off our marriage, saying he isn't ready. He gives as his reason that he's in debt and has to pay what he owes before he marries.

Another reason is his mother doesn't want him to marry, and he's afraid if he did it would hurt her feelings. He's never been married before.

DISHEARTENED

It's fortunate that you're only 20 years of age, and have plenty of time to meet the right type of man. Apart from the fact that this man doesn't wish to marry you, he sounds like a poor sort of creature to me. He's fourteen years older and apparently has not much in the way of prospects. Better forget him.

THEATERS

"Made for Each Other."

CAROLE LOMBARD, one of Hollywood's best investments, turns from the daffy comedies she has been doing ever since "My Man Godfrey" started the vogue, and is back on her home lot of drama. She is co-starred with James Stewart in "Made For Each Other," a drama of a young couple and their baby and all of the trials that take place during the first few years. The highlight of the story is the flight of a plane from the West to New York, carrying a special serum which means life or death for the baby. The picture opens with a midnight matinee tonight at the Ohio.

"The Little Princess."

Frances Hodgson Burnett's story of a poor little rich girl who was shoved around in a girl's school when word came of her father's death and the amazing adventures that befell her, comes to the screen with filmdom's own small princess in the title role, Shirley Temple, who loses none of her charm and appeal as she growns older and whose acting ability increases, play the princess, with a notable supporting cast which includes Richard Greene, Anita Louise, Ian Hunter and Sybil Jason. Opens at the Madison Sunday.

"Snow White."

Walt Disney's first full-length feature cartoon "Snow White and The Seven Dwarfs," which opened a new and enchanting field in the motion picture industry when it was first shown last year, comes to Mansfield for the second time tomorrow at the Park theater. It was first shown here in March, 1938, and in the past year it has made box office history. It is being withdrawn from circulation by the Disney studios to make way for the new Disney feature, "Pinocchio." Some of the loveliest music in recent years accompanies the picture. "Snow White" is the only feature on the program which is rounded out with short subjects.

"The Shining Hour."

A solid gold cast is the chief attraction of "The Shining Hour," one of the Ritz attractions for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. The co-stars Joan Crawford and Margaret Sullivan are supported by Robert Young, Melvyn Douglas and Fay Bainter. This is a problem play of two brothers and the women they married, one a glittering night club entertainer, the other a conservative Kansas girl "I Am The Law" with Edward G. Robinson, is a picturization of the Liberty magazine story.

"Doctor Rhythm."

Three song hits are included in the musical score of this Bing Crosby picture—"On The Sentimental Side," "This Is My Night To Dream" and "My Heart Is Taking Lessons." Beatrice Lillie, Mary Carlisle and Andy Devine are the major supporting characters, with Miss Lillie as the eccentric aunt of blond Miss Carlisle. "My Son Is a Criminal" is a dramatic theme of a law enforcement officer whose son is a gunman. These two features make up the Majestic bill for Sunday and Monday.

A TOP PRICE

Another reminder of the prosperous twenties—a fine antique mahogany Chippendale highboy in 1929 brought $44,000, the highest price ever paid for a single piece of furniture in the United States. At the same sale a mahogany Chippendale chair brought $33,000.

Etiquette

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it good taste to have a wedding reception at a hotel or the country club, when the bride's home is not large enough to accommodate a large number of guests, or would it be in better taste to invite fewer guests and have the reception at home?

It is in good taste to have a wedding reception at a hotel or country club. Whether we choose these more ample rooms or have the wedding reception in the smaller rooms of our homes depends entirely on our choice. The reception held at home has an intimate charm, but of course it does usually limit the number of guests.

Wedding Invitation.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am to be married within the next couple of months, and as my fiance is not of the same religion we are to be married in the priest's home. Under these circumstances, only the immediate family will be present.

The wedding reception is to be held in a hall at about nine-thirty, as I am not to be married until seven o'clock in the evening. Under these conditions, how should my invitations be worded?

If you wish your invitations to be formally worded, as I judge you do, this is the correct form: Mr. and Mrs. John Townsend Kent request the pleasure of your company at the wedding reception of their daughter Mary and Mr. William Brown Adams on Tuesday, the fifth of April Central Hall Hanover, Virginia

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am very unsure about the pronunciation of valet. Some of my friends pronounce it vallet. Others pronounce it vallay. Since it is a French word, it seems to me that it should be pronounced vallay. Should it be?

Vallet is the more correct pronunciation. The word is originally French, but it has been so completely absorbed into the English language that it has been given, by the consent of good usage, an English pronunciation

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I like very much to send Easter cards I have recently been married, and I am not sure just how to sign these cards Do I write my name first, or my husband's?

You write your name first. For example: "Easter greetings from Mary and John," or "Easter wishes from Mary and John Robbins."

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I found Noel fully dressed, freshly shaven and seated by a window in his room eating the breakfast-luncheon Harry Underwood had brought up to him.

Neither man had recognized my knock, and Harry Underwood had yelled a nonchalant "Come in!" I had the flashing opportunity, as I opened the door, to appraise the tableau they presented. Then both men were on their feet.

"Ah! Lady Fair!" Harry Underwood turned his lazy, sardonic grin on me as he bowed from the waist in approved military fashion. "What's on the overworked brain?"

"Aunt Madge!" Noel exclaimed. "What good wind brings you here?"

"Your father's car," I answered, smiling at him.

"My father's car!" he repeated. "Is he here now? What does he want of me?"

"He doesn't want anything of you," I assured him hastily. "And he isn't here now. He's coming back as soon as I have arranged an interview with Queen Olga."

"Do you know why he wishes to see the queen?" he asked next, and Harry Underwood laughed.

"In my day," he drawled, "when an old billy goat with whiskers—meaning no disrespect to your charming pater, my dear Noel—arranged for an interview with a fascinating widow, the neighbors always cackled disrespectfully: 'He's goin' a courtin'. Wonder how long it will take him to pop the question'."

"Do you really think that?" Noel asked, and Harry Underwood chuckled.

"I'd lay a good penny on it, and give odds," he said, and Noel's face lightened with hopeful relief.

"I trust you're right," he said. "Perhaps if he married royalty himself—"

He broke off abruptly, with a swift, startled, side glance at me, and I suddenly realized that he knew more of his father's scheme to disrupt his marriage and link his life to Olina's than he ever had confided to Mary or me.

"You didn't come in here just to pass the time of day," Harry Underwood said, "so come clean. Is it Noel or my fascinating, devilish self who is the object of your quest?"

"Sorry! but your 'fascinating, devilish self' doesn't interest me today," I retorted. "But I do want—

"Say no more!" he adjured, sauntering toward the door. "I don't need the traditional ton of brick to fall on me to discover I'm persona non grata—and I hope you notice that I have one Latin phrase in my vocabulary. So I'll be seeing you—so long!"

He opened the door and was gone upon the word. I turned back to Noel, feeling decidedly embarrassed at the things I must say to him.

Remedy Prominent Bones

By MME. QUI VIVE

Collar bones out in the open where everyone can see them give the appearance of emaciation and under standard health. But those are not the usual causes. If the chest caves in, shoulders are pushed forward, the backbone rounded when it should snap in at the waist line, collar bones come to the surface. Stand tall, lift the chest, balance the head, tuck in your tummy, and watch those shelves evaporate.

For the perfect silhouette the throat should be slightly thicker from front to back than from side to side. The lower portion should carry a slight indentation. From that point there should be a gradual fullness of the chest to the breasts, the breasts forming the lower part of the line. There should be no evidence of collar bones at all.

If emaciation is present, put on a decent padding. You'll feel the better for it. A glass of cream and milk between meals will furnish you with adipose material. Take three or four bonbons after luncheon and after dinner. Sugar is concentrated food, stores itself away if you don't work it off. Thin girls are inclined to be overactive, move around so fast fat cells can't find them.

Local treatment consists of massaging the throat and chest every night with lanoline or cocoabutter. If you prefer a lighter massage agent, use cocoanut oil. It has a pleasing odor and makes the skin smooth.

Do a rotary movement along the little shelves, using flattened fingers and pressing into the flesh. Let the oil remain on overnight. Every morning turn the cold spray on neck and chest, friction with a coarse towel, rub with alcohol.

The big idea is posture. Keep the backbone stretched full length. Hold in your tummy. You can't do that and also hold in your chest. The chest naturally lifts, the head takes the correct pose.

When ironing linens cover a piece of beeswax with flannel and rub it over the surface of the iron. Linens ironed with an iron treated in this manner will have a fine gloss.

Youngsters Like to Cook

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

STARTING them young is a good rule when applied to cooking. If the youngsters are taken into the kitchen and allowed to help with the preparation of meals, the chances are that the little girls, yes, and the little boys, too, will grow up to be good cooks. When they grow up, they will know almost by instinct how to create the most difficult of dishes.

The recipes given here have been chosen because of their simplicity.

For those who might have difficulty coping with the stove, why not let them freeze decorative ice cubes? Use vegetable colorings for the water, in delicate tints. Cut lemons in thin slices, halve the slices and scallop the edges. Fill the ice tray one-third full of colored water. When the water is partially frozen, place the lemon slices, stuck with cloves, in position. Add more of the tinted water so that they will freeze in position. Freeze slowly with the cold control at one of the "warmer" positions. Use these ice cubes in fruit drinks for flavor and for "conversation."

Cinnamon Toast.

Cinnamon toast is always good, but is better when made by your youngster. For eight slices bread, one-quarter inch thick, take four tablespoons butter, one teaspoon vanilla, four tablespoons powdered sugar and three teaspoons cinnamon. Cut the bread in narrow strips and remove all crusts.

Toast to a golden brown. While hot, spread with creamed butter to which the vanilla has been added. Sprinkle with the sugar mixed with cinnamon Put in oven until sugar is melted.

Bidbit Balls, require one cup each seeded raisins and dates, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon vanilla, melted dipping chocolate and one-quarter teaspoon salt. Put raisins and dates through food chopper. Add cinnamon, vanilla and salt and mix thoroughly. Roll into three-quarter-inch balls and dip in melted chocolate. If preferred, the dipping may be eliminated and the balls rolled in powdered sugar or shredded cocoanut.

Apple Tapioca.

Baked Apple Tapioca is a delicious sweet that the children will enjoy eating all the more because they have helped to prepare it. Get together three cups water, two tablespoons lemon juice, three tart apples, pared and sliced, one-half cup quick-cooking tapioca, one cup light brown sugar, firmly packed, one teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon mace and three tablespoons melted butter. Combine water and lemon juice and pour over apples in greased shallow baking dish. Cover and bake in 375° F. oven 15 minutes or until apples are partially cooked. Mix together tapioca, sugar, salt and mace. Sprinkle over apples, mixing thoroughly. Add butter. Continue baking for 10 minutes longer. Serve with cream Serves six to eight.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

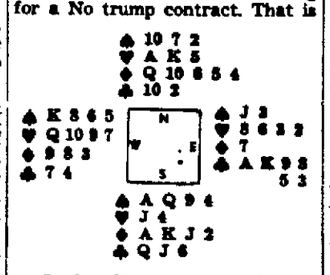
"The Authority on Authorities"

THE KEY TO THE HAND

Having three suits in good shape, but the remaining one wholly unprotected, is no situation calling for a No trump contract. That is one reason why you try to tell your partner generally about each additional suit you have in good shape.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

Hearing from you about a particular suit may be the entire key to the hand, as he knows the others are well guarded against assault by the enemy.

South began the bidding of this deal with 1-Spade. West passed, North bid 2-Diamonds, East 3-Clubs, South 3-Diamonds and West passed. North now was in a decisive situation. He saw a perfect diamond fit, but hardly any likelihood that the side could take enough tricks to make five-odd for a minor game. He felt that the side had about "enough stuff" for a 3-No trump try, but that it was not safely placed unless South could stop the clubs. Lacking any club stoppers himself, he could not dare try a no trump at this stage.

Upon reflection, he realized that South might have the clubs in shape, but no protection in hearts, especially since he had the two top honors there himself. He thereupon bid 3-Hearts, just music to the ears of his partner, who then bid 3-No trump because of his club stopper, and made it easily.

The 3-Heart bid with only three cards was not as dangerous as it might sound. South would be sure to know the suit wasn't over four cards long, since North bid his diamonds first. Therefore if South raised the hearts, he would have at least four, so North would take a chance on the suit breaking. North's acumen produced a game not in sight by any other sound tactics.

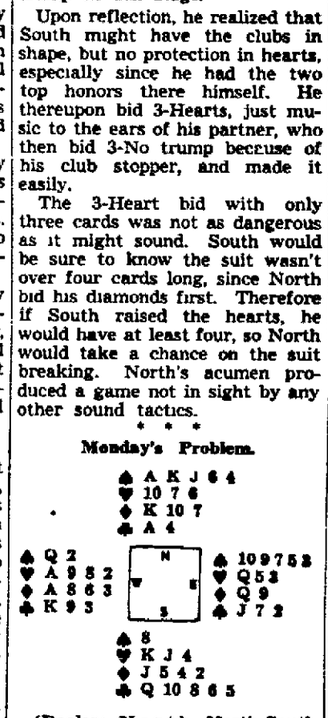
Monday's Problem.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

Following the heart 2 lead, to the Q and K, why should South, after winning the club A, finesse the club 10 instead of playing the Q?

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, March 19.

Sunday's horoscope is a very promising one for success and happiness, with much activity in the way of entertaining, social correspondence or cultural pursuits. There may be pleasant trips but be cautious of health and safety.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a progressive, prosperous and happy year, with much activity and prosperity in business. But business may be secondary to social, domestic, cultural or romantic affairs.

A child born on this day may be versatile and have fine creative talents, possibly in poetry, music and art. It may have novel expression or mystical trends, but should be modest and unassuming, seeking solitude and spiritual joys.

For Monday, March 20.

Monday's astrological forecast is a particularly promising one, with the prospect of prosperous and happy fulfillments in both private and business life. Elders and substantial friends seem to offer solid tokens of love and appreciation, probably through gift, bequest or insurance. But see that these are not imperilled by treachery, fraud or sinister entanglements.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a propitious and happy year, with promotion, preferment and fruition of many fond hopes and wishes. Elders and superiors may show friendship, probably in wills, gifts or trusts. But safeguard these from all forms of entanglement, trickery and fraud. Strange influence threaten.

A child born on this day may have many unusual talents, with fine expressions in art, music, poetry or novel inventions It should have a fine character.

IRONING BOARD

Unaccounted-for smudges that appear on freshly laundered clothes are often caused by an ironing board cover that isn't quite clean. A few removable unbleached muslin covers that can be tubbed and changed for each batch of ironing will more than repay their upkeep by protecting the entire week's wash.

In the manufacture of new artificial woolens from cellulose, glycerine has become almost indispensible in many processes for creating these modern materials. The crimped wool-like effect of the fibers is usually created by treating viscose or the like with hot glycerine. This treatment also imparts softness and gloss to the threads and to the finished fab-

'Fan Night' Party Scheduled for Legion Hall March 29

Affair to Open Ticket Campaign For Ball Club

Major League Baseball Film to Be Shown at Event Planned by Citizens.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

NOTHING is being left undone in the attempt to revive baseball interest in the city this year.

A new owner, manager and players will be in the picture this year, a remodeled ball yard will be offered the customers and night baseball will be introduced.

They should all be of material help in the campaign to bring back baseball interest in Mansfield.

Interest Being Revived.

A new growth of interest in the diamond sport is becoming more evident each day, and citizens around the town are starting to pitch in to help make Mansfield baseball-minded again.

Citizens are volunteering their services to Cohen, and a committee will be formed in the near future to conduct an opening day ticket sale for the club.

Arrangement for the drive have not been completed, we understand, but the plan is to stage a mammouth "Fan Night" to launch the ticket campaign.

The affair will be staged in the auditorium at the McVey post, American Legion, Wednesday, March 29.

It is planned to bring several outstanding baseball personalities to the city for the event, but the identity of the guests has not as yet been revealed.

In addition, the official baseball film of either the American or National league will be shown.

It was hoped that Ray French, new Mansfield pilot, would be here for the party, but Cohen said today that it will be impossible for him to come to the city until early next month.

Persons interested in reviving baseball enthusiasm are planning on staging a pasteboard campaign similar to the one conducted for the Boston Red Sox two years ago.

However, the tickets will be sold for the opening game, Wednesday, May 3, instead of for a booster day as in 1937. The price of the ducats will probably be a dollar.

Confident of Co-operation.

The regular admission price for the Ohio State league games will be 40 and 25 cents, but the opening day ticket will be sold for a dollar, according to present plans.

Citizens offering to conduct the sale for Cohen believe that the city will respond generously to the campaign.

A total of 2,300 tickets were sold in the 1937 campaign for the Red Sox.

With the opening game introducing night professional baseball in the city, it is believed that a more successful campaign than staged in 1937 will be conducted.

Yuncker Team Advances In Willard Play

Sports Face Cleveland Club In 4:30 Game.

Only one of the two Mansfield quintets entered in the fifth annual semi-pro tournament at Willard will return to the Willard high school gym in a quarter-final tussle today.

It is the Yuncker's Suorts, and they face the Miller Tailors of Cleveland at 4:30 p. m. The Sports waded through their opening contest in fine style by drubbing the General Industries outfit of Elyria, 40 to 26, in an opening round affair. The tourney will be run off today, with the finals scheduled for 11 p. m.

The other Mansfield club, the Page Dairy outfit, which won its initial game Wednesday night, was eliminated last night by dropping a 29 to 20 decision to the touted Huber Motors of Tiffin in a quarter-final melee. The Tiffin team is composed of former college stars.

A basket bombardment in the third period enabled the Dairys to climb within three points of the lead before the Motors could get going. It was the nearest they came to overtaking the Huber team. The Dairys matched the winners from the field, but their inability to convert from the foul line was a major factor in the defeat.

The Tiffin club flipped in 11 successive free throws, while the Mansfielders could garner only two out of 11.

Tiffin was leading, 6 to 2, in the first farme, 14-4 at the intermission, and 22 to 17 at the end of three quarters.

George Hummel paced the Mansfield club with seven points, while Kuntz of the Motors copped individual honors with 10 markers. No boxscore of the Yuncker-Elyria game was turned in.

In other Willard scores: Class A—Cleveland Falcons defeated Lorain New Deal Restaurant, 33-29; Class B—Willard Stapfs Drugs defeated Akron Young Men's club, 42-33; East Akron Castings defeated Republic Grange, 39-22; Lorain Carek Meats defeated Akron Spotless Soots, 39-17.

Six Champions On Mansfield Track Program

Open Season Here April 1. With Springfield.

COACH Harry Mehock did not pick on any soft spots in arranging the track schedule for the 1939 Mansfield high school team.

Six dual meets have been scheduled for the Red Streaks, and each one is a champion.

The Mansfield thin-clads open with Springfield at Stadium field April 1. Springfield is the southwestern Ohio district champion. The following week they go to Newark to meet the Central Ohio champions.

An April 15, Mehock's men travel to Columbus north, which took the central Ohio crown last spring. Following the Mansfield Relays, the Erie, Pa., Strong Vincent aggregation will come to Mansfield. The Erie school won the state title last year.

Mansfield faces the northwestern Ohio district champion at Columbus May 3. The other dual meet on the schedule is with Akron Garfield May 13. The Presidents annexed the northeastern title last year.

The Red Streaks will make appearances in relays May 5-6. On Friday of that week, the Mansfielders will compete in a night carnival at Toledo DeVilbiss. They go to the Ohio Wesleyan relays the following day.

Mansfield will be host in the district meet to be held May 20, and the Red Streaks qualifying will take part in the state finals in Columbus the next Saturday.

Mehock also has arranged a strong schedule for the reserve trackmen. Ten dual meets have been arranged for the team. The schedules follow:

Buckeyes Rip Wake Forest

Tackle Villanova In Semi-Finals Tonight.

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—A nimble Villanova team and a powerhouse aggregation from Ohio State meet tonight in a battle to decide which will represent the east in the National Collegiate A. A. basketball finals at Evanston, Ill., March 27.

Both advanced to the semi-finals last night, Villanova by trimming Brown university, 42 to 30, and Ohio State by a record-breaking, hair-raising triumph over Wake Forest college of North Carolina.

Six points behind at half-time, the Ohio State team punctured its opponent's defense in the last 10 minutes of play and came out on top, 64 to 52. Wake Forest started downhill the moment Capt. Jim Waller was benched for fouls. Up to that time, the North Carolina southpaw's trick shots had the Bucks buffaloed.

Dick Baker of Ohio State looped 10 field goals and five free throws to lead his team to a scoring record for the Palestra, where the match was played.

In the opener, little Johnny Krutulis ran Brown ragged and piled up 14 of Villanova's 42 tallies.

Reds Beat Tigers, Face Red Sox Today

SARASOTA, Fla. —(CP)— Playing their eighth exhibition game in as many days, the Cincinnati Reds come here to meet the Boston Red Sox today.

The Reds scored a 5-4 victory in 11 innings over the Detroit Tigers yesterday for their fourth win in seven starts. Manager Bill McKechnie selected Ray (Peaches) Davis as his starting pitcher.

Three of the Reds' influenza brigade, Myers, Schott and Hershberger, had recovered sufficiently to resume workouts yesterday. Pitcher Johnny Vander Meer also showed vast improvement with an inflamed appendix. Stan Bordagarey was the latest casualty, being confined to bed with a heavy cold.

MILNAR, ZUBER GET CALL DESPITE POOR SHOWING

NEW ORLEANS — (INS) — In spite of their poor work against minor league clubs, Al Milnar and Bill Zuber were to take the mound when the Cleveland Indians engage the Philadelphia Athletics today in the first game of a week-end series. Johnny Humphries also was scheduled to pitch three innings.

AIKEN, S. C. — (U.P.) — Kathryn Hemphill of Columbia, S. C., won the third annual Aiken women's invitational golf championship by posting a 75 for a 54-hole total of 219 yesterday.

Babe Meder Wrecks Season Mark With 767 Series In Moose Loop

Father Extends Son In Record Games With 748 Total; Lodge Team Features 1119 In 3014 Count.

PRESSED by his dad, who bowled with the opposing team, Edward (Babe) Meder establish a new season individual scoring record on the alleys owned and operated by the Meder family last night.

Young Meder blasted out a sensational 767 series to erase the old mark of 760 rolled by Christ Herrick early this season.

Family Steals Show.

Bowling in the Moose Home league, Babe and his dad, Mike, stole the entire show last night. The elder Meder poked out a 748 to account for one of the better totals of the season.

The record-breaker featured a middle 277 game. He started off with a 234, and finished with a brilliant 256 as he led his No. 6 team to a 2777 total.

His dad also came through with his big score in the second game, collecting a 276, one pin less than garnered by his son. He sandwiched this game between scores of 236.

The elder Meder led the No. 3 contingent to a new five-man league record of 3014 in which a middle 1119 was featured. The second game score was only 14 pins short of the season alley record.

Mike was ably assisted in the marking by Winnie Cleckner and Wilfred Hipp, who came through with respective totals of 662 and 649. The former had a high 257 score in the middle game. Hipp opened with a 233 and 225.

Incidentally, the No. 3 club took two of the decisions.

Lead Lodge Foes.

Featuring a 241, Brig Young came through with a 619, but the No. 5 team dropped two games to No. 1, led by Farrell Hipp's 615. Hipp, father of Wilfred, closed with a 615.

In the other match, No. 2 annexed two wins at the expense of No. 4.

The only other 600 total rolled at the alleys last night was compiled by Campbell of the Ohio Brass league, who pounded out a 620.

Lewis Nearly Blind, Bout Called Off

DETROIT—(AP)— Dark-skinned John Henry Lewis' future as a prize fighter was clouded today—the physicians say he is virtually blind in one eye—but the impression remained that the Pittsburgh light heavyweight champion would stay in the market for bouts.

A title fight, in which Lewis was to have met young Dave Clark of Detroit, here March 31, was off after two examining physicians for the Michigan boxing commission reported the sight in Lewis' left eye was "almost nil" from "probable traumatic cataract."

Kudo Pins Hart In Feature Of Best Mat Show of Season

Jap Stages Comeback After Losing First Fall; Masked Marvel, Arquette Win Other Bouts.

IF THE WORLD is to be safe for democracy or, for that matter, safe for white skinned light-heavyweight wrestling champions, somebody is going to have to do something pretty soon about Kimo Kudo, the Japanese jumping jack.

Once again the husky behemoth mowed down another opponent when he took Frankie Hart for two out of three falls on Tim Nolan's Friday night Quality club wrestling show at the Armory.

Aggressor during the early minutes of their match, Hart appeared well on his way to ending the yellow peril when he kept the Jap in trouble with an arm lock and finally pinned him with a flying mindmill and arm lock after 16 minutes of torrid action.

Jiu-Jitsu Helps.

In the second setto, however, Kudo obviously had Hart baffled with his jiu-jitsu tactics, and, after throwing the Canadian off balance, put on a wrist strangle that had Hart's arm white from lack of blood and his face contorted with pain.

There wasn't much to the third and final fall. Kudo came out with blood in his eye, used two body slams, a headlock and another wrist strangle on Hart's bum wrist to take the fall and the match in something under three minutes.

For pure action, this was the best match the Jap has had here, and the entire card was on a par with the main go. Ironically enough the best show Nolan has put on this season had the smallest attendance.

But what the crowd lacked in numbers they made up in enthusiasm, particularly in the semi-final when the Masked Marvel villained his way to victory over Davey Reynolds of Cedar Rapids, Ia., by taking two straight falls.

In spite of help from Referee Clarence Miller and a lady at the ringside who insisted on beating the Marvel with her fists and anything handy when he got near her, the great unknown won the first fall with a hair toss, kangaroo kick, two rights to the chin and a kick in the neck in 21 minutes.

Troubled by Referee Miller in the second fall, the Marvel slugged Miller until he got him out of the way, bent Reynolds back over the ropes, slammed him to the floor and sat on him for the match. The result was unpopular with the fans who booed as the Marvel left the ring.

Stage Rough Bout.

Sammy Vangler, heavily outweighed, and Indian Gordon Arquette staged a knock-down-drag-out prelim with the heavier Arquette having the advantage in skill and ability to use a quick one-two below the belt. There was no fall, but Miller gave the decision to the Indian after 30 minutes on the grounds that he punished Vangler so severely.

Next Friday's program, Nolan announced, will see a card of three heavyweight matches probably headed by the popular Frankie Sexton. It's the first time in months that heavyweights have been booked for the Quality club show and Nolan promises plenty of action. He couldn't do much better than last night's card for excitement.

"Woods and Waters"

By YUNCKER BROS.

IN LINE with an effort to bring grouse hunting to the southern part of Ohio, in the unglaciated counties where it is certain ruffled grouse have their most natural habitat, Commissioner Don Waters will report the results of an investigation being made, at the next meeting of the Conservation Council.

Harry Cliff, secretary of the Central Ohio Anglers' and Hunters' Club of Columbus, reports that over a ton of grain has been used by that organization this winter in operating feeding stations for wildlife. He stresses the need for persons who operate feeding stations not to neglect to supply grit with the grain, so that the birds can digest the food.

Sport Notes: A spring distribution of 9,000 pheasants, 80 per cent of which are cock birds, has been announced by the Conservation Division. These will be planted in sections that were overshot to restore sex balance. In a Federal survey of big game now afield, Ohio is ranked 39th, with 2,000 white-tailed deer and a dozen of black bears. Charles Metzler, Jefferson, Ohio hunter, shot a silver fox while hunting near that village, and the pelt is reported to have brought him $60.00.

Western Ammunition is a favorite with experienced shooters the world over, and leads the field in the many advanced features that add to sport and skill. Yuncker Brothers carry the Western line of shot shells, as well as cartridges for practically every caliber rifle or revolver.

The Ohio Wildlife Research Station of Ohio State university, in unusual matters brought to the attention of the Division of Conservation, estimates that 1,100,000 boxes of shells were used in 1938 in shooting at game. There are 25 shells in each box, or a total of 27,500,000 shells, which laid end to end would make a string of shells nearly 1200 miles long, which would reach from Akron to New Orleans. These shells would weigh 1850 tons. This does not include all the shells that were used for shooting at skeet and trap.

Fishing tackle shipments from America's best known makers is arriving almost daily at Yuncker's. Complete selections are now ready including rods, reels, lines, lures, flies, etc., etc. Now is a good time to choose the things you'll need to start the season off, so that your equipment will be in complete readiness when you get the "Go" signal this Spring.

In this day of fast motor cars, the fatalities to game birds and animals on the highways are heavy. By slowing down when game is sighted on the road, and by tooting the horn or blinking the lights, every motorist can save many rabbits, pheasants, quail, etc., that might otherwise be destroyed.

Ohio Cage Tourney May Close With All-Akron Finals Tonight

By FRITZ HOWELL.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— No matter who wins Ohio's Class A and Class B high school basketball championships tonight at the State Fairgrounds coliseum, the 1939 classic probably will go down in history as the "foul-callingest one of its kind.

With each of the sessions running an hour or more behind schedule, it became evident that a lot of time was being wasted by the boys trotting to and from the free throw line. In the 24 games played during the first two days a total of 578 fouls were called and 693 free throws fired. Of the latter total 342 were made and 352 missed.

Call 'Em Close.

The officials are "calling 'em close," and the least lapse starts the whistles tooting. In the dozen Class A games in the first and second rounds, 25 players were ejected via the personal foul route.

As the teams squared off for today's semi-rinals, from which the survivors will go to tonight's championships games, it was certain that the Class A king would come from Akron, Bellefontaine or Cincinnati, while the Class B title was due for a trip to Monroe of Butler county, North Canton of Stark county, Sandusky St. Marys of Erie county, or Denison of Tuscarawas county.

Akron had two representatives remaining in the Class A play, both Garfield and North emerging victorious from the second round. Cincinnati sent Roger Bacon into the semi-finals—the best a Queen City team ever has done in the big classic—while Bellefontaine breezed through to its 19th win in 20 starts. It was Bellefontaine's first trip to the big tournament.

Massillon, Bridgeport, Cleveland Shaw and Dayton Fairview bowed out of the "A" battle in the second round, Fairview losing three of its stars on personal fouls before losing to Akron Garfield by five points.

The longest winning streak in the state—Green township's 30-game splurge, was wrecked by a free-wheeling North Canton club, 28 to 25, thus erasing the last of Ohio's perfect records. In the same class Sandusky St. Marys' 1936 champion, beat a good Glenford team, 40 to 33, with Capt. Art Link, forward on the Associated Press All-Ohio team, scoring 23 points for the day's big offensive.

Charley O'Leary, the only Irishman on Cincinnati Roger Bacon's Catholic team, celebrated St. Patrick's day with an 18-point barrage, just half his team's total in the 36-30 win over Cleveland Shaw.

Bellefontaine took its win from Massillon the hard way, coming from behind in the last period to win 37-34. Herman, Massillon's fine forward, rang up 17 futile points to pace the point-getters. Akron North, in swamping Bridgeport, came through with the biggest scoring rampage in Class A, getting 51 points to Bridgeport's 30. The Akron club led only 22-18 at the half, but an 18-point third settled the issue.

Akron vs. Akron?

With the Class A semi-final schedule calling for Bellefontaine to meet Akron North, and Cincinnati Roger Bacon to battle Akron Garfield, it is possible to have an all-Akron championship game.

Four of the state's six districts are represented in the Class B struggle, only the central and southeastern districts being eliminated.

A total of 6,357 fans witnessed Friday's contests, boosting the two-day total to 18,391. About 12,000 must attend today's two sessions to better the record set a year ago.

CHAPTER 28.

WHEN THEY had left the tiny inn where they had eaten their wedding supper, Jim turned to Lona in the deepening darkness.

"Guess where we're going now?" he bade her, solemnly.

"I couldn't, Jim," She was embarrassed again. "Tell me."

For answer he stopped the car and pulled from his pocket the road map he had procured at a service station just outside the city. With solemn mein he spread it over the wheel in the dim light of the instrument board, traced the route over which they had come with an inquiring finger. At a red-lettered "Sandringham" the finger paused.

"That's where we are now," he told her, and she stared at it with a catch of her breath. Sandringham! What an odd place in which to be married.

"And here's where we are going!" The finger traced an uneven inch or two and stopped triumphantly at a tiny speck, lettered, "Fairfield."

"Fairfield?" She rolled it on her tongue questioningly. "I've never heard of it. Have you been there before, Jim? What kind of place is it?"

He laughed and started the motor. "We're going there now," he told her. "Sounds like a swell place for a honeymoon."

"But don't you know anything about it?"

"I know it has a nice name." He was grinning down at her.

"But maybe there's no hotel, no place to stay—"

"Let's try it. Are you game?" He looked at her like a boy, a gay, irresponsible boy.

"Of course I'm game!" She leaned back in the seat, catching his mood. He began to hum as the miles sped by, a funny, old-fashioned tune that had been popular a decade ago. Memory stirred in her brain, and she joined in, her clear soprano blending with his baritone:

With someone like you, a pal so good and true,
I'd like to leave it all behind, and go and find.
Some place that's known to God alone,
Just a spot to call our own . . .

Fairfield was a quaint, shady, one-street country town. Lights blinked sleepily in old-fashioned houses as they drove through the square. No hotel sign was visible, only a drug store and a pool room with a row of loafing men just breaking up after the evening's pow-wow.

Disappointment took hold of Lona until, down at the farthest end of the flower-bordered street, they came upon a friendly "Tourist Home" sign. It pointed to a stately home with a white-pillored veranda set like the scene in a stage play, back in a clump of pines with a winding moss-grown walk of brick. "Modern Accommodations" the sign proclaimed in smaller letters, and she and Jim looked at each other.

"I told you Fairfield was the place," he reminded her triumphantly. When he had brought the throbbing car to a stop, he got his long legs onto the ground and, reaching back for her, lifted her bodily in his arms.

"I'm going to carry you in," he told her, and she struggled laughingly.

"Please, Jim! Set me down. There's somebody looking—"

Kiss me first!" he demanded, and she had to respond.

The woman who met them at the door smiled at them as if she were welcoming visiting friends.

"The front room is the nicest," she told Lona, bustling about, gathering up their suitcases while Jim signed a bold "Mr. and Mrs. James Claridge" on the thumb-marked book the man of the house handed him. He winked at Lona as he signed it, and she blushed as she hurriedly followed the heavy-footed, kindly-faced woman up the winding stairs.

"We call this the blue room," her hostess told her. "Pa and me, we had it done last spring, new paper and everything. I'll just show it to you before your husband comes up." She proudly exhibited an array of blue-flowered walls, a blue crocheted bedspread on the huge four-poster bed, and quaint lace curtains, topped by ruffled blue valances, at the broad, many-paned windows.

It was an ensemble that would have caused a smart decorator to shrink in dismay, but to Lona it seemed homey and old-fashioned, and brought to mind the room she had occupied at home in the old days.

"Been married long?" the woman lingered to ask her, shyly.

"Not long." Somehow Lona managed to make her voice sound casual.

"You look like a bride." The woman's eyes were motherly. "With them flowers and all. I'd better get a vase for them." She bustled about again, and impatience shook Lona. Would she never leave? She wanted suddenly to be alone, to wait for Jim.

The bustling figure departed, finally, leaving behind her an atmosphere of fussing over the little things that go to make for comfort; extra blankets at the foot of the bed in case it should turn cool, minute instructions as to how the window shades should be drawn to keep out the morning sunshine.

In her "good night" there was a smiling knowingness that left Lona standing in the middle of the floor, her face burning, dreading the sound of Jim's footsteps on the creaky old stairs, yet knowing that he would come.

She was seated calmly before the quaint old marble-topped dressing table brushing her shining curls when he did come a full fifteen minutes later. She had unpacked her suitcame and removed the blue wedding dress to a hanger in the deep clothespress. The rose crepe negligee that was the one extravagant purchase of her hurried trousseau had replaced it on her slim figure. From its ruffles her white arms peeped out coyly, and her face in the mirror looked ridiculously young, the eyes just a little frightened.

Jim came in softly, as if he feared she might be asleep and he had no right to wake her. With simple directness he crossed the room to where she waited, her eyes on his in the mirror, and took her in his arms.

"You're so pretty, girl," he brought out, holding her gently. "So pretty! . . . I can't believe we're here together—married."

"Jim! Oh, Jim!" She clung to him suddenly.

"I'm going to make you happy, girl!" he promised, and there was an odd defiance in his voice.

"Happy!" he repeated, almost loudly, as if he were reassuring himself.

His lips were hard against hers as he kissed her.

"Jim—" she said, again, as he picked her up, suddenly, as lightly as if she were a child.

Later that night she awoke to find him breathing ryhthmically in the darkness by her side. Over the old-fashioned room the roses in their vase—wedding roses—cast a stealthy perfume. The moon had risen and was pouring through the windows, the quaint flaring lace curtains sifting it out into filigreed patterns that fell across the bed. In the reflected light she made out his lean face. He looked boyish in his sleep, the tightness of his mouth relaxed, a lock of his unruly hair straying down over his forehead.

With a tender hand she reached over and smoothed it back. He stirred at her touch like a child beneath its mother's hand, and she drew back without waking him. He looked so peaceful, so content. And it seemed so natural to be here at his side in the night. So safe.

She breathed a little prayer as she settled back to go to sleep again, her head against his shoulder. "Make it be like this always, dear God! Make it last."

NEW SENIOR HIGH TALENT TAKES SPOTLIGHT IN OLDTIME COMEDY

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

A new group of players took over the dramatic duties at Mansfield Senior high school last night in a production "Lavender and Old Lace," and promised to make the school's followers of theatrical affairs forget the loss of some of their favorites in the January graduating class.

In a play better suited to the "old Opry house," the school's Red Masque players gave a well-balanced performance before an audience of about 1,000, composed largely of high school pupils.

That the play scored was shown by the fact that the players' lines were frequently drowned in laughter and "ohs" and "ahs," and E. L. Heasley, director of the production, even pleaded with the audience to restrain its enthusiasm so as not to disturb the players.

If there were individual honors in the play, they probably should go to Betty Hanlon and Albert Poth for their comedy bits and Vivian Miller for her lead part as the kind old lady around whom the story was built.

Miss Hanlon as the romancing maid and Poth as her bashful boy friend, who was induced to propose after five years of "courtin'" by reading a dime novel, provided most of the laughs.

Miss Miller gave a convincing and sympathetic performance as the inhibited and lovable woman who refused to leave her New England home for years because she was afraid her lost lover might return in her absence. She finally found an outlet for her stored-up love in a young newspaperman on vacation in the village who turned out to be the son of her lost lover.

Harold Duda, one of the few veterans of the cast, played the son's role and won the hand of Ruth Meisel, a vacationing newspaperwoman. Miss Meisel, a newcomer in high school dramatics, displayed enthusiasm and charm that won the audience.

There was plenty of romance in the slightly outmodeled production, with no less than three couples, including the aged New England lady and her faithful family doctor, heading for the altar or already there when the curtain went down.

The doctor's role was played by Willis Wygant, a veteran of school productions. He gave his lines with feeling and clarity that went to the far corners of the balcony.

Miriam Jenkins as the village gossip was typical of the scandal mongers found in a small town, providing her share of the fun.

Ruth Smith as the dominating neighbor who went to Europe to bring back a meek and obedient husband was excellent. Richard Wright as the husband was properly subdued but amusing when he found courage to "speak his piece" while his wife was out of hearing. Gertrude Kullman handled a minor role ably.

Only Miss Hanlon, Duda, Wygant and Wright of the 11 players in the cast have appeared in recent high school productions.

Business managers for the production were Virginia Williams, and Betty Reese. Ralph Arlin and Robert Sheriff were in charge of advertising, and Maxine Hartman was prompter.

The property committee included Jean Wolff, Janet Kelly, Gene Lantz and Alice Rhoads. In the stage crew were Richard Nicholas, manager; Charles Callahan, electrician; Rex Collins, Richard Collins, John Mecklem, Ralph Shivley, John White and Tom Holland. David Ireland was in charge of make-up.

The high school orchestra, directed by S. K. Jorgensen, played before the production and between acts.

GUERNSEY HERD TAKES HONORS

Raemelton Farm Receives Two Awards For Production as Breeders Meeting Ends.

Awards for the best producing Guernsey herd and the best producing three-year-old Guernsey cow last year in the Dairy Herd Improvement association were presented yesterday to Raemelton farm of Mansfield at the annual meeting of the Ohio Guernsey Breeders' association at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

From the Raemelton herd, 51 cows produced an average of 481 pounds of butterfat to win the record production award. A three-year-old, Raemelton Sunny Mag, produced 11,791 pounds of milk and 623 pounds of butterfat to take the individual medal.

A marked increase in the amount of Guernsey milk marketed in Ohio and Michigan last year through the Ohio Guernsey Breeders association and its affiliates was reported at the session by Floyd F. Barlow, the association's milk sales representative.

Barlow said 12,361,000 pounds of milk was distributed through 28 associated companies in Ohio and 11 in Michigan, an increase of 8.7 per cent over 1937.

Thomas Briggs of Wooster, field secretary for the association, told the group that 14 livestock auctions were conducted by the association last year, with 614 purebred cattle sold for a total of $80,500.

William Erf of Bellevue was re-elected president of the association. Otto C. Kline, manager of the dairy at Raemelton farms, was chosen vice president, and Ivan Steiner of Wooster was elected secretary-treasurer.

Principal speakers at the convention were Darrel Brady of Minneapolis and George M. Newlin of Farmington, Mich. Brady illustrated his lecture on "The Golden Isle of Guernsey" with color movies.

EUROPEAN WAR DANGERS HOLD BACK MARKET

Selling Follows Brisk Opening, Stocks Lose Fractions To Three Points.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading stocks fluttered downward in today's market dealings. Fresh worries over European war dangers were given as the main cause of selling.

At a lively start, with blocks of several thousand shares changing hands, losers of fractions to 3 points included U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Loew's, Bethlehem Steel, Westinghouse, Pennsylvania, N. Y. Central, Consolidated Edison, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft and Montgomery Ward.

Some attention was given the survey of the federal reserve board disclosing department store sales for the week ended March 11 were up 2 per cent over the corresponding 1938 week. The year-to-year increase in the preceding week was 7 per cent.

Those holding building company shares noted forecasts that fully 500,000 new dwelling units in all types of communities might be constructed this year, a gain of about 45 per cent over last year.

streets on which estimates had been prepared by City Engineer W. C. Statler.

He pointed out that the improvement program had been curtailed more than had been expected this year because of an anticipated drop in revenues from automobile registration fees and gasoline tax receipts. Improvements on additional streets may be made later in the year if the revenue permits, he added.

Berg explained that the city expected to spend only about $10,000 this year which is approximately $11,000 under the amount used for street improvements during 1938.

The projects to be done by contract include:

The resurfacing of East Third street from North Adams to North Main streets at an estimated cost of $6,800; resurfacing of Augustine avenue from South Main street to South Mulberry at a cost of $2,900, and the paving of Woodward avenue from Bartley avenue to Marion avenue, estimated at $10,200.

The projects figured with WPA assistance are:

The grading and graveling of Lawnview avenue from Maple street to Overlook avenue along with the construction of curbs and gutters at the cost of $2,500, and a similar project on Fairlawn avenue from Maple to Park drive estimated at $2,400.

COUNTY WILL BE DEBT FREE IN '40

Remaining $50,000 In Bonds Will Be Retired Next Year, Auditor's Report Shows.

distributed to the various units of government.

Wolfe attributed the decrease to a drop in sales tax receipts and other revenue from the state which is allocated to the county subdivisions through the auditor's office.

The report listed a total county balance of $308,207 on Dec. 31, 1938. That amount included $115,438 belonging to the county, $188,628 in undistributed tax funds, and $4,141 in money held by the county for other agencies.

The county received $361,252 for its general fund last year and spent $4,600 more, of $365,890. A $12,973 balance at the beginning of the year, however, made it possible to complete 1938 with a general fund balance of $8,335.

Total income from taxes last year was $1,784,283, with general property taxes contributing $1,393,725. Other major sources included $144,330 in classified property taxes, $96,205 in state sales tax, $47,521 in inheritance tax, and $41,218 in motor vehicle license tax.

Among the principal users of county general funds were the following departments and institutions:

Auditor, $25,455; board of elections, $23,122; county home, $21,186; welfare department, $22,136; courthouse and jail maintenance, $27,872; treasurer, $15,923, and probate court, $13,175.

Special expenditures during the year included $17,086 for hospitalization of tuberculosis patients, $3,186 for examination of county offices by the state, $3,349 in workmen's compensation premiums, $2,187 for maintenance of county prisoners in workhouses, and $6,554 for maintenance of county inmates in state institutions.

SEEKS BIDS ON GARBAGE TRUCK

City Acts to Buy New Vehicle; Sets Price Limit of $2,600.

The city took steps today to acquire additional equipment for the garbage department as the board of control called for bids on a new garbage truck. Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist said bids will be accepted until noon April 5.

Specifications call for the delivery of a modern sanitary refuse collector with mechanical loading equipment, not to cost more than $2,600 and to have a capacity of not less than eight cubic yards.

The truck is to be of 1½ or 2-ton capacity capable of carrying 10 tons, equipped with a three-man cab, governor, dual rear wheels with 10-ply tires and puncture-proof tubes.

ACTION DUE ON WOODARD SOON

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Whether or not dismissal charges will be filed with the civil service commission against suspended Ohio Penitentiary Warden James C. Woodard will be determined next week, Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood revealed today.

Sherwood said a full report from Acting Warden William F. Amrine, superintendent of corrections, was presented yesterday. His decisions, Sherwood said, will be based entirely upon what the report contains.

Rumors of wholesale liquor and dope peddling and showing of favoritism within the prison walls caused Sherwood to hand Woodard a 30-day suspension. The welfare director placed Amrine in full charge of a "thorough investigation.

Texas and California," and it was made abundantly clear that no protests from abroad would swerve Hitler from his chosen path.

There was no illumination thrown in Berlin on reports reaching London that Germany had served something in the nature of an "economic ultimatum" on Rumania in furtherance of Hitler's "drive to the east."

But so far as Bohemia, Moravia and Slovakia are concerned, the government took the view that what happened was inevitable.

"The reich has created and is carrying out its own Monroe doctrine in central Europe," a spokesman for the government told this correspondent.

"Germany considers itself entirely justified, and is just as much entitled to do this as is the United States in its own particular sphere of influence.

"Mr. Welles has used the term 'wanton lawlessness.' We can only ask him whether the United States ever saw fit to apply such a term to its action in incorporating Texas, California and other territories into its domain.

"We can, however, well understand Welles' use of the words 'temporary extinction' with regard to Czechoslovakia. After all, the United States was the birthplace of post-war Czechoslovakia. It clings tenaciously to its step-child and can understandably maintain illusions about its rebirth some time in the future.

"This, however, is nothing more or less than an idle dream.

"America is very sensitive about its Monroe doctrine, and heartily dislikes anything like disturbances in certain spheres under its influence. We now have our own Monroe doctrine in the Central European sphere and we are equally sensitive about it.

"This is something that the United States should not forget.

"With regard to Welles' statements about the 'sanctity of treaties' and 'broken pledges,' need we remind him of the broken pledges of Wilson's fourteen points?"

The speech of Prime Minister Chamberlain, it was said, was "extremely prejudiced" and constituted an "unfair view of the situation."

"It was obviously made under Rooseveltian influence, the spokesman said.

Chamberlain's assertion that, as a signatory of the Munich agreement, he should have been consulted before any German move in Czechoslovakia was branded as absurd.

"This would be just the same as Germany demanding consultation before any British intervention in Palestine," the spokesman said.

The foreign office generally maintained that President Roosevelt's recent "war-mongering" was largely responsible for creation of the present explosive European atmosphere and had resulted in the "lack of understanding so clearly evidenced in Chamberlain's speech."

Box Car Fight Ends Long Search for Killer Suspect

TEXAS POLICE SAY MUSICIAN 'ADMITS ALL'

Ex-Convict Caught In Company of Fugitive Girl, 15, Faces Quiz in Murder.

(By Associated Press)

CORPUS CHRISTI Tex.—John Henry Howland, will-o-the-wisp fugitive charged with brutally slaying Miss Maude Horne, 62, at Milton, N. H., was held here today.

Earl Dunn, special investigator for the district attorney's office, said Howland admitted to him and several Corpus Christi officers that he killed Miss Horne and stole her automobile Feb. 3. He previously had been identified by fingerprints and photos.

Howland was arrested yesterday following a fight in a box car near the port of Corpus Christi. With him were a 15-year-old New Hampshire girl who gave her name as Mary Butler and a man who said he was James Edward Bowles. They were arrested after another man was beaten about the head with an iron pin. Howland said the man had attempted to assault the girl.

Worked as Private Nurse.

Howland, an accomplished musician and ex-convict, had been sought through the southwest since Miss Horne was found slain Feb. 4 in her home. He had been employed as a private nurse for a relative of the slain woman.

Federal agents joined the search after it was determined that Howland and his cousin, Aida Elizabeth Butler, had left the state in an automobile stolen from Miss Horne.

The pair sold the automobile at Wilkinsburg, Pa., federal officers learned, and purchased tickets to Memphis, leaving there for Wynne, Ark., on a freight train. At Memphis, they registered at a hotel as Mr. and Mrs. J. A. King of Lubbock, Tex.

Howland next showed up Feb. 17 at McAllen, Tex., where he was fingerprinted when he asked for a bed in jail for the night. His identity was established after he had been released.

Howland was arrested at Austin, Tex., Jan. 26, 1931, in connection with a car theft. Two days later he was arrested by San Antonio police on a car theft charge. He was sentenced there to from two to five years and received at the penitentiary at Huntsville on May 29, 1931.

He also served terms in the Washington state reformatory and in the Ohio state penitentiary. He is a native of Middletown, O.

An amateur inventor and a guitar player, Howland had written several musical selections, using the name of Juan Enrique. At one time he prepared diagrams for the construction of a gasoline engine of his own design.

Parents-Children Spelling Contest Ends In Dead Heat

Pop and Mon held their own last night in the Grotto spelling bee, but they failed to send the youngsters down to defeat.

Neither the team of five spellers from the Parent-Teacher associations nor the team from Senior high school could down the other and at the end of the orthographic bout two spellers still remained on each team.

They were Herman Clingan and Milo Heiber for the P-T A. and Virginia Gerke and Charlotte Bright bill for the Senior high team. Prizes were determined by drawing lots, and were given by the O. O. Brenner Jewelry company which sponsored this week's "bee."

Arrangements for the event last night were made by Charles Freehafer and L. A. Cook. Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch served as spelling master and Harry E Colbow as timer and judge.

The series of spelling contests is being sponsored by the Grotto, with a weekly sponsor giving prizes. Another one is being arranged for next Friday night

It doesn't take a musician to win a music contest. Betty Gaubatz, 370 Fourth avenue, won second prize of $3 early this week when she was called to the stage of the Palace theater in Cleveland this week in the Kay Kayser Musical Kollege of Knowledge. The questions all pertained to compositions, composers, and identification of numbers. The Mansfield girl lost out by one question to a Cleveland girl who won first prize. Miss Gaubatz' musical knowledge comes entirely from reading and the radio.

The Mansfield high school c[illegible] were erased from the state title scene in a hurry in Columbus Thursday but Coach Russ Murphy got his picture in a Columbus paper anyway. Murphy was photographed in his hotel room the evening before the game and the picture was used in connection with a story about one of his Tygers, Tommy Scott, jr., whose father was a member of the first state championship basketball team.

No matter how you spell it, bologna is still a Waterloo for participants in spelling bees. It defeated the majority of persons in a bee at North Lake park recently and this week sent down to defeat most of the persons taking part in a spelling contest at Bellville. It was the word "avoirdupois" however that ended the contest in which Frank Leedy was winner. One of the bad factors about "bologna" however, is that it is nearly always mispronounced, because it isn't "baloney," but is pronounced the same way as the city for which it was named.

That wasn't an aerial attack on the city that Mansfield's southside residents heard last night but just a "streamlined belling" with aerial bombs for Mr. and Mrs. Roy Myers at their home on Gilbert avenue. A group of friends of the recently married couple got them out of the house with the bombs and the customary bells and tin pans that make up a "belling." Myers, a city letter carrier, was married last week to Miss Sylvia Verreika.

HEAR BUTLER

Mansfielders to Go to Shelby For Talk by Ex-Marine Head.

A number of Mansfielders will be in the audience when Major General Smedley D. Butler, retired commander of the United States Marine Corps, and one of the nation's most colorful speakers, appears at the Shelby high school auditorium Monday night under the auspices of the George Brodbeck post, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Butler, who was something of a stormy petrel while in service because of his blasting frankness in regard to the politicians, retired eight years ago and since then has spoken before 2,100 audiences. He appeared in Mansfield in 1931.

While the general usually speaks on his colorful fighting experiences, he never fails to comment on current affairs in his own language.

Tickets for the Butler lecture are being handled in Mansfield by Glenn Gamber of the Rogers Jewelry company.

APPEALS FLOOD EASEMENT PRICE

Weller Farm Owner Protests $4,200 Awarded Her By Jury.

Notice of appeal to the Fifth district court from a judgment awarded in common pleas court March 9 had been filed today with Clerk of Courts Fred R. Zellner by Viola Boals, owner of a farm in Weller township.

The judgment gave Mrs. Boals $4 200 for a flood easement on 168 acres of land in Weller township. That amount was awarded her by a jury in common pleas court several weeks ago. Her motion for a new trial was overruled and the judgment confirmed.

Mrs Boals first carried her appeal to the county court, contending that the amount offered her by the Muskingum Conservancy district for an easement on her land was inadequate.

CIVIC MUSIC WORKERS SURE OF HITTING 1,000 MEMBERS

Success for the Civic Music association membership campaign seemed almost assured today with workers confident their goal of 1,000 members would be reached and possibly passed by the time the drive ends at 10 p. m. tonight.

Enthusiasm mounted to the cheering stage last night when the headquarters staff was overtaxed to care for all the reports made by workers.

Mrs. Paul Cropper, general chairman of the drive, said today that many of the "regulars" in the association who were sure to renew their memberships today would very materially take the drive past its goal.

No memberships will be taken after 10 p. m. today, she said, neither renewals of old members nor new persons desiring to come into the organization.

The increase over the first two years of the organization—1937 and '38—is no more than 20 percent. There were less than 800 last year and about the same figure the first year the Civic Music plan was launched in Mansfield.

Mrs. Mercedes Walker, New York representative of the Civic Music plan, expressed the opinion today that the two major reasons back of the increase, other than the fine work done by the workers, were confidence in the plan itself to supply cities with the best music talent, and the unusually fine programs of the first two years.

"People of the community" she said, "have learned to have confidence in the officers' choice of programs, whether they know of the artists themselves or not. There was Douglas Beattie who sang here the first year and who was practically unknown to the majority of the audince. This season he made his debut with the Metropolitan Opera in 'Thais,' The Civic Music plan is cumulative and over a period of years, members will have heard the best of all contemporary artists."

ARMY SEEKS TO OBTAIN MOST DEADLY PLANES

New Crafts Designed to Be Effective For Attacks on Land and Air Combat.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The army launched an intensive nation-wide recruiting campaign today for youths to train as pilots for the more than 3,000 additional warplanes congress has authorized.

(By United Press)

DAYTON—The U. S. army air corps today began exhaustive tests at Wright field here of three of the fastest battle planes ever built—light bombers which can go almost 400 miles an hour and which will give Uncle Sam the most deadly of world air forces.

Although contracts for building the new bombers will not be awarded for some time, the opening of bids of three airplane manufacturers gave an idea of their specifications. Briefly they are:

North American Aviation, Inc., Inglewood, Calif., entry—high wing twin Wright 1350 horsepower engine; gross weight 9 tons; wing span 66 feet; length 48 feet, 3 inches; height 10 feet; hydraulic landing gear; cost per plane $456,000; cost 700 to 2000 planes, $51,000 each.

52 Feet Long.

Stearman Aircraft Co., Wichita, Kas., entry—high wing twin Pratt Whitney 1400 horsepower engine; gross weight 9 tons; wing span 65 feet; length 52 feet; height 12 feet; electric landing gear; cost per plane $435,000; cost up to 300 planes ranges from $70,686 to $83,280 each.

Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore, entry—midwing twin Pratt & Whitney 1100 horsepower engine; gross weight 8½ tons; wing span 61 feet; length 48 feet, 6 inches; hydraulic landing gear; de-icing equipment; cost per plane (two units) $926,500 and $993,600; cost for 300 planes $71,250 each; for 2000 planes $56,000 each.

Promise of delivery of the first planes ranged from eight to 18 months. Thereafter mass production up to 100 planes by the 22nd months could be achieved.

The planes, it was understood, are designed for effective attack upon ground troops as well as bombing and defense against other planes.

SUBMIT CLAIMS

3 More Property Owners Ask Damages From City.

Additional claims for damage from flooded cellars as the result of last weekend's heavy downpour faced city council today.

The new claims, filed with Council Clerk William J. Beer, jr., were submitted by Mrs. John Grega, jr., 144 Miller street, who asked $50 damages; Glenn Davis, 28 St. Clair street, $175, and Friedeich Diehm, 324 Laird avenue, who seeks $15.50.

They contend that water from the sewers backed up in their basements damaging foodstuffs and other property.

Meanwhile the claim of Martin Karl, 21 McPherson street, for $350 which was referred to council's claims committee at Wednesday night's meeting, was turned over to the county commissioners after Arthur L. Croak, chairman of the committee said the claim was rejected on the grounds that the damage was caused by water which drained into Karl's basement from a watercourse outside the city.

Not That It Matters

Another WPA Peccadillo Bromfield Picks Malabar As Name For New Farm

—By JANE WILLIAMS

ONE of those incomprehensible manifestations of the administration toward the relief problem is found in the president, on one hand begging for $150,000,000 to keep WPA going, and on the other spending $250,000 for a building and theater at the World's Fair where WPA "art work" can be shown.

The quarter of a million — a mere bit of chicken feed to the WPA—comes out of the regular WPA budget and was appropriated on orders from Washington, according to capital correspondents.

There will be a big U-shaped building, an adjoining theater and motion picture house where WPA artists can produce plays, and where murals and pictures by WPA artists can be displayed. The quarter of a million is just for the buildings—the cost of operating the project comes later, and is as yet unestimated.

It does seem as if the only remedy for recovery that hasn't been tried is just common, ordinary horse sense. But that probably is much too simple a remedy to be applied to so complex a problem.

HIGHLIGHTS of the week: Ethel Barrymore's husky voice singing—God help us—"My Heart Belongs to Daddy" over the air waves . . . Charlie McCarthy's interview with the original Beatrice Fairfax: "Where did you learn about the things that you tell other people not to do?" . . . The studious little skunk in the colored cartoon at the Ohio, sitting on a stool poring over the volume "How to Make Friends and Influence People" . . .

LOOKING at it from the viewpoint of William Allen White, that the Republican party needs to be reborn and the Democrats must repent to be saved, one gets the impression that what we need most is another Billy Sunday and his sawdust trail.

MALABAR . . . The name stirs the imagination . . . Indian spices, dancing girls, narrow streets and filthy beggars. Not by the greatest stretch of the imagination could it remind you of the low hills, sweeping valleys and lazy brooks of Richland county.

But "Malabar Farm" will be the name of the Bromfield farm in Monroe township. Why? For several reasons—all pretty good ones even if we did try to howl them down in favor of something typical of the Buckeye state. First, the novelist is very fond of India where he has spent considerable time and where he has many friends; and second, "Nothing could be more appropriate than giving the farm an Indian name," he says, "because India made the farm possible"—referring to "The Rains Came," his best seller which not only ran into hundreds of thousands of copies but brought a fancy price on the Hollywood block.

And then, too, the first novel that will be written at Malabar farm—first chapters of which are already completed—will be another story of India and the cafe society of Bombay.

RETURNING from France this week where he had gone to lease out the Bromfield chateau at Senlis, George Hawkins, secretary and business manager of the novelist, tells of the melancholy that has settled down over the people of that country.

"It isn't war scare," he said, "because most of them believe that there is no immediate danger of war, but it's a depression and the armament program. The tourist business, one of France's greatest sources of employment and revenue, is completely gone, and every penny in France goes into arms and munitions. Everyone seems to have that hopeless what's-the-use feeling."

On the small boat in which Hawkins returned to America were 1,500 Jewish refugees. The immigration quotas of Germany, France, Italy, England and all of the smaller European powers, are being filled by Jewish refugees. From all over Europe, according to Hawkins, the Jews, who apparently are being driven from the face of Europe, are turning to the United States, their only sanctuary.

YOU may be interested to know that some of the "best sellers" of 30 and 40 years ago are still on the shelves of public libraries and are called for frequently. The Graustark books by George Barr McCutcheon are still popular; at the Mansfield Public Library "Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" and "The Crisis" are in regular circulation. Then there is "When Knighthood Was In Flower," "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," "Richard Carvel," "Janice Meredith," "The Man On the Box," which are still asked for at book shops and lending libraries.

There weren't many "sex thrills" in those books, but gosh, there was a ton of romance on every page. Wonder if the present crop of "best sellers" will be read a half century from now?

FAIR ENOUGH!

If Irish Want to Claim Famed Americans, They Should Claim Few Others

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Recent advices inform your correspondent—some of them with more than a trace of anger—that Gen. Phil Sheridan was an Irishman and that his services to this country, therefore, must be regarded as a contribution of the Emerald Isle.

Gen. Lee Bullard and Gen. Hugh Drum are similarly claimed in a long list of distinguished individuals, which includes John L. Sullivan, Gene Tunney, James J. Corbett and Gabby Hartnett.

The names and careers of the persons cited sum up to a very impressive total, and their subtraction from the score of American achievement and honor would leave the United States much poorer and Ireland the gainer.

Recorded information has it, however, that Gen. Sheridan was born in Albany, N. Y., and that Generals Bullard and Drum are natives, Gen. Drum being, indeed, the son of an American officer who was killed in action in the American war against Spain.

Sullivan, Tunney, Corbett and Hartnett also were born and raised in this land, and the feats for which they were famous were performed in the nation of their birth and allegiance.

The claim advanced by Irish correspondents and also by an Irish newspaper published in New York, is one of great delicacy, as your correspondent learned last year when he awarded to Italy full credit for the lives and works of a long roll of famous, if not exactly honored, individuals who rose to eminence in the criminal branch of American endeavor.

Now, with regard to Gen. Sheridan and the others cited by Irishmen as Irish contributors to the greatness of the United States, they were or are, as the case may be—one is heatedly informed—Irishmen though born here, and their careers belong among the treasures of that great nation.

So be it, then, but if it be so, the list of noted Irish among us must be opened to others who are plainly eligible on the same ground, starting, at random, with the late Boss Dick Croker of New York. Mr. Croker's career was, in its peculiar way, highly successful, but his contribution to the political morals and public welfare of the United States is one which Ireland may not be alert to claim.

Frank Hague, the mayor of Jersey City, a millionaire by dint of saving on a modest salary, and his precocious son, lately appointed to the highest court in New Jersey, thought not long out of law school, are two more who belong to Erin's honor roll by this argument.

To Ireland also must go credit for the contributions to good government and public morals which have honored the names of the O'Connell brothers of Albany, and to Ireland also such glory as she may find in the lives and works of Maurice B. Connolly of Queens, Big Tim Sullivan, Commendatore Tomasso Pendergast of Kansas City, Tin Box Tom Farley, Charles F. Murphy, Jimmy Hines, John McCooey and those twin guardians of honor, decency and civic purity in the old First ward of Chicago, Hinky-Dink Kenna and Bathhouse John Coughlin.

Anyone who claims individuals for Ireland has no right to break the package and choose only a select few.

A simpler and more honest and sporting way would be to yield to this nation all the achievements of one kind or another of all her citizens. The United States should receive the credit along with the punishment.

SEEK POWERS FOR ROOSEVELT

Administration Aides Would Broaden Authority to Deal With Dictatorships.

plexing that the administration deemed it advisable to reiterate in general terms the position of the government, which must be well known both here and abroad."

Administration men took a different view, Senators Barkley (D., Ky.) and Pepper (D., Fla.) contending no nation should fail to condemn Germany's actions.

Officials hoped this government's denunciation would lead to a concert of disapproval by the democratic nations and possibly affect Hitler's future moves.

The first reaction to the Welles statement, one said, was the speech delivered last night by Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain, warning Hitler that the British would fight if he continued to seek domination of Europe by force.

Welles' statement came shortly after Mr. Roosevelt had told a press conference that European developments made it desirable to revise the neutrality act at this session of congress.

Later in the day, the treasury added Czech provinces seized by Germany to its tariff "blacklist," denying them trade concessions granted all countries except the reich.

Another development was a statement by Chairman Pittman (D-Nev) of the senate foreign relations committee that "we must not delay in preparation for potential political and physical action."

The foreign relations committee will meet next Wednesday to consider proposals for revision of the neutrality law, which, when invoked by the president, prohibits arms shipments to warring nations and puts shipments of other materials on a "cash and carry" basis. The cash and carry provision, scheduled to expire May 1, means that purchases in this country must be paid for in cash and transported in non-American vessels.

Some members of the committee said they would like to see the cash and carry clause extended and broadened to cover munitions shipments. Speaking anonymously, they said the resources of this country thus would be thrown on the side of the nation which controlled the seas — probably Great Britain and France.

Both Mr. Roosevelt and Welles refrained yesterday from suggesting specific measures.

Senator Davis of Pennsylvania objects to calling children "kids." Is that crudity still in vogue in some parts of the country?

Word comes that circuses are having trouble finding clowns this year—but surely all of them haven't found political jobs.

Advantage In Doing Both at Once.

SUGGESTION by Councilman Shultz that proposed modernizing of Mansfield's water distribution and sewer systems be considered as one project, has merit that cannot well be overlooked.

The underground network of water lines and sewer pipes cannot be reached without costly tear-up of streets and a large amount of excavating that will result in considerable inconvenience while it is in progress.

If water and sewer improvement plans are carried through separately, or if one was financed in advance of the other, there would be much duplication of cost for excavating, and need for a second tearing up of a number of streets.

A survey of requirements in the water distribution system has already been made, with estimates of probable costs. Steps have also been taken toward a check-up of the present sanitary sewer system, with a view to disclosing what must be done to remedy its deficiencies.

As is by now quite generally realized, both the water and sewer systems are greatly in need of rehabilitation. If possible, they should be handled, and financed, as one project.

Anniversary of Girl Scouting.

REACHING the 27th anniversary of its formation, the Girl Scout organization finds a constantly growing field for its activities, with progress limited only by inadequate finances and need for more volunteer workers to serve as troop leaders and advisors.

Originated by Juliette Low, of Savannah, Ga., at a tea party which a group of young girls attended at her home in March, 1912, the Girl Scout idea has gained in acceptance through more than a quarter of a century and seems as vigorous and young as ever.

Girl Scouts in Mansfield learn to cook a meal, model a vase, pitch a tent or conduct a meeting, by actually doing these things. Also, they are learning to choose intelligently from among many possible courses of action—a requisite in training young people to become good citizens in a modern democracy. A Girl Scout is taught to ask, "What are the facts?" and her watchword is, "Go and find out."

Those women in Mansfield who have been giving time and energy to furthering Girl Scouting in this city have two major concerns: To keep the Girl Scout program as fresh and varied as possible, so that every girl may find in it something she needs, and to enlist more volunteers to lead troops of girls who are anxious to become Scouts but who have not yet been provided with leadership.

While excellent work has already been done in the Girl Scout organization in Mansfield, this can be materially advanced by increased financial and personal co-operation.

Not Merely a Matter of Age.

ANY RULE that would arbitrarily bar persons from industrial or trade employment after the age of 40, 45 or 50 would not only be unfair but it would also be shortsighted.

Reasons other than age sometimes enter into the matter of certain persons holding jobs long past middle age while others are regularly dropped from payrolls at the first opportunity, moving from one job to another and placing the blame on employers—never seeming to realize that they themselves may be at fault.

This subject is interestingly discussed in Elsie Robinson's "Listen World" article, elsewhere on this page—reading of which is especially commended to young men and women who find trouble in holding a job after they get it.

Time to Check Home Heating Plant.

RECORDS show that residential fire losses take a decided spurt toward the end of the cold weather season. The explanation is that householders have been running their heating plants steadily since the first cold days in the fall and that defects may have developed in stoves, furnaces or chimneys.

A fire prevention engineer gives suggestions for avoiding fires from defective heating systems at this time of year. He warns against forcing furnaces or stoves and says that if you can't get enough warmth from them, it will pay to call in a heating expert.

He suggests that householders check over their heating systems to look for such defects as broken parts, holes in the smoke pipe, burnable material near the smoke pipe or any very hot part of the heating plant that becomes charred from the radiated heat. Look for dirty or defective chimneys.

Heating plant fires, particularly, are a menace to life, because they are so likely to occur during the night, or in the early morning hours.

Toledo Plan Has Good Year.

REPORTING 1938 as its most peaceful year in industrial relations since 1932, Toledo has reason to feel gratified by the appearance of steadily growing confidence in its Industrial Peace Board, which was put in operation several years ago as a means of dealing with industrial disputes in a spirit of friendliness and common sense.

The Toledo Peace Board, which represents neither labor nor capital, approaches each problem in an attitude of good will and attempts to find the merits of each case, with a view to ironing out differences before anger, intolerance or agitation has precipitated a strike, which is recognized as detrimental to all parties concerned.

The Toledo plan, as it has become known, is attracting considerable attention over the country and is already being copied in a number of other cities. It seems worthy of study and emulation.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—The president is having word trouble again, and no wonder. Half the troubles of the country arise from mistrust and misunderstandings generated by words and phrases that some people understand one way and others a different way, and some that some people don't understand at all.

Pat Harrison, chairman of the senate finance committee, which handles tax matters, joined the president in urging the press to find a substitute for the word "appeasement" as representing the administration's new policy toward business.

The word appeasement came into general use after Prime Minister Chamberlain explained what had happened at Munich. The democracies had to "appease" the totalitarian nations to keep from having a fight.

"Who's Afraid Of—?"

WELL, said Harrison, coming from the White House, if anybody wants to get in the president's hair let him continue to use the phrase "appeasement of business" as representing Mr. Roosevelt's attitude. Maybe it is appeasement but it isn't the kind that comes from being "scared," as were England and France at Munich. Or at least it won't do any good to carry on the idea that the president is so scared that he is going to give business everything it wants. That is what Harrison intimated.

The president promised to go to his thesaurus to find a better word and told the press to "go thou and do likewise." Anyway, he said, the press invented the word, not the president.

Well, there are others having word trouble. Jerome Frank, Securities and Exchange commissioner, said that certain words stirred up bad associations and prevented clear thinking. So he invented a trio of new ones and said others could be designed.

He was discussing monopoly. Monopoly, he said, sounds like a crime, but certain monopolistic systems are socially desirable, notably telephone and water systems. To such monopolies he applied the name Ugwug.

In turn, he said regulation of industry often seemed to mean excessive governmental intervention or regimentation. Yet some regulation is highly desirable. He calls it Agwag.

Again, he said, when business men got together among themselves, or with labor, buyers, and producers, or any two or more of the list got together, it was immediately interpreted as a conspiracy to fix prices and rob the ultimate consumer. But at times such consultation is highly desirable, and to the "good consultation" as distinguished from "conspiracies in restraint of trade," he gave the name Wifwaff.

Some Other Possibilities.

THEY were splendid words, but even Frank could not tell which meant which after he had once used them.

Off hand we can think of a half dozen other words that could use a bit of revising. The word "purge" used in Germany to extinguish opposition by use of the axe, was employed here during the last political campaign and beclouded the issue handsomely.

And yet, the New Dealers who suffered from employment of the word "purge" have no true complaint coming. Early in the New Deal, liberals who happened to differ with New Deal methods were arbitrarily damned as "conservative tories."

Nowadays, in the eyes of some New Dealers, every discontented conservative is a "fascist."

In the eyes of some discontented conservatives, every New Dealer is a "communist."

Such usage makes good headlines but plays havoc with sensible understanding.

WPA vs. Dole Is Relief Argument

—By MORGAN M. BEATTY

WASHINGTON—Work relief or the dole for the unemployed millions?

The president and congress come once again to that same old question that plagued the nation in the dark days of 1932—and has remained to plague it ever since.

Dress them up, garnish them any way you will, but the hot words about relief and economy crowding onto page one of your newspaper these days add up to just that issue. There's simply no way around it.

Thumb back fast through eight swift years of relief history in the United States and you'll see why.

In 1932 congress avoided the issue temporarily by providing a quick $500,000,000 for the relief kitty in the various states, thus passing the buck to 48 other governments. The states by and large passed it on to the localities. The counties and cities made no bones about the choice. They picked the dole, because it was cheaper and simpler. And the dole it still is in most states, counties and cities, whether they call it general relief, direct relief, or any other name.

Two Relief Pools.

IN 1933 congress faced the question again. This time the nation had shown a dislike for the dole. Even though cities clung to it so money would go farther per unemployed citizen, it was not the preferred way. The national lawmakers, therefore, chose work relief, despite its higher cost, and confirmed the precedent in semi-permanent WPA two years later. In the federal government, it has been work relief ever since.

Gradually two pools of unemployed citizens formed at the bottom of the economic ladder.

One was the work relief pool, sponsored by WPA. Into it went citizens conforming to an unemployed standard labelled "employables." The "employables" are cared for to the limit of federal funds at a cost varying around the $2,000,000,000 mark annually. Just now there are about 3,000,000 persons in that pool, with more than twice that many dependent on them.

In the other pool are the dolees. They include all the destitute who can't work, and the WPA waiting list of employables as well. Just now there are about 1,500,000 persons in this less desirable pool, with many more dependents.

The fellow on the dole gets an average of $24.88 a month, depending on the state or city he lives in. The fellow on relief receives an average monthly wage of $52.50. It costs little more than $25 a month to keep a man on the dole, at that rate. But it costs $75 a month (including wages and materials), to furnish a man with work relief. Therefore, the dole is the way of rigid economy; it makes a dollar go a long way. Work relief is the way of higher cost and greater satisfaction.

May Be Cut Some.

AS TIMES get better, the population of those two pools may dwindle some, perhaps a few hundred thousand by June 30. But the actual number doesn't really alter the fundamentals.

If the president gets the $150,000,000 he has asked for to carry WPA to the end of the fiscal year on June 30, that will merely mean the federal pool will be kept just as full, proportionately, as it now is. There will be no change in the congressional policy to furnish work relief to employables.

But if congress does not vote the money, then people turned away by the federal government will simply drain back into the dole pool operated by the states, counties and cities. Intentionally or otherwise, congress will be leaning toward the dole.

That's why a mere $150,000,000 in these times of billion - dollar budgets is so important. It becomes a yardstick of economy at a time when the national debt is reaching toward the statutory limit. It becomes also the emblem of the principle of trying to give every unemployed worker a job.

Those are questions congressmen will be worrying about when they vote on that $150,000,000. For the issue is work relief versus the dole—spending versus economy.

Over Forty—So What?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

W. E. CONKLIN of Inglewood, Cal., speaking—and saying a mouthful. On that much discussed subject—"WHY CAN'T THE 'OVER FORTY' WORKER GET A JOB?"

Friend Conklin's an "over-forty" himself. And defies anyone to show where he's a poorer craftsman for that fact, says he—

"Over thirty years of my life have been spent in the building business—particularly in the construction end of the work, in the planing mill — both machine and bench—and in the mill drafting room on detail work, from the average residence fixtures to the highest class bank and store fixtures.

"Such a record is not a matter of mere mechanical routine. It requires new and more complicated technique each day. You are learning all the time. For instance, in my case, I have worked with the most substantial men in my game and, as a result, have learned many valuable little tricks which a beginner could not possibly know . . . and cannot possibly learn unless he has the good luck to contact experienced craftsmen.

"In short, I know things which cannot be learned in books . . . which can only be gained in the college of hard knocks. And my value as a worker should be increased accordingly . . . YET THE MERE FACT THAT I AM 'OVER FORTY' OFFSETS ALL THIS. WHEN THE PINCH COMES, SOME YOUNG SQUIRT WHO IS BARELY STARTING OUT AND WHO HAS LEARNED ALL HE KNOWS FROM ME, WILL BE GIVEN MY JOB . . . AND I WILL GET THE AXE! And what is true of me applies to millions of other workers, equally skilled and still able to give years of fine service—but disqualified because they are 'over forty!' WHY?"

That letter interests you, doesn't it? Perhaps you're an 'over forty' yourself or have friends who are . . . and you, too, may be wondering why skilled men and women are disqualified "simply because they've reached that age."

BUT THEY AREN'T DISQUALIFIED BECAUSE THEY HAVE REACHED THAT AGE. THERE'S ANOTHER REASON . . . AND AN EXTREMELY IMPORTANT ONE . . . WHICH WRITER CONKLIN HASN'T MENTIONED, AND WHICH NEVER OCCURS TO MILLIONS OF EMBITTERED EX-WORKERS.

Granted that a worker accumulates important knowledge and technique as the years roll along . . . learns things which no beginner can possibly know—

But, unfortunately, while he is gaining all this valuable knowledge, he is apt to be accumulating other things which are not so valuable! He is piling up prejudices and arrogance, intolerance and resentment, stubbornness and endless little eccentricities which make him a difficult associate.

WHY DOES THE GREEN YOUNG WORKER SO OFTEN GET THE JOB WHILE THE OLDER EXPERIENCED CRAFTSMAN GETS THE AXE? THAT'S WHY.

What a man KNOWS constitutes only a small part of his value as a worker. What a man IS is usually far more important to the Boss. Youthful eagerness and enthusiasm, co-operation, initiative, good sportsmanship, friendliness and open mindedness are far more important than technique in the average job.

It isn't the CALENDAR that knocks a worker off the payroll . . . nine times out of ten it's his own CUSSEDNESS and CONCEIT.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Grover Cleveland, twenty-second and twenty-fourth president of the United States, was born at Caldwell, New Jersey, on March 18, 1837.

What's Happened?

Week-End Summary of Current Events.

FOR 40 years in four major industries, WPA researchers say, an average of one out of every 10 workers has been out of a job. And though President Roosevelt expects business to improve this spring, he warned congress this week that there still will be more unemployed than WPA can hire with its allotted funds.

More confident than ever that the New Deal policy of creating jobs for those able to work is right, Mr. Roosevelt said only 3.5% of WPA's money goes for administrative overhead and 10.5% for materials and equipment, leaving 86% which is paid out in the form of wages. Therefore, he thought, WPA should be commended and given $150,000,000 more.

That is the difference between the sum the president sought and what he got earlier this year in a relief appropriation that was passed without a roll-call vote in the house and by a one-vote margin in the senate.

The Battle Begins.

Congress had expected such a message.

Administration leaders had begun button-holing Democrats before it arrived to get them to vote the money. But Senate Finance Chairman Harrison (Democrat) had declared he was against it and that congress was more eager than ever to economize. And Rep. Woodrum (Democrat), aggressive leader of the house economy bloc, considered the president's plea melodramatic emotionalism.

Woodrum had been pinch-hitting for 80-year-old Rep. Taylor as chairman of the house subcommittee in charge of such matters. But Taylor introduced a bill to give WPA the $150,000,000, and resumed his post. Riled economy advocates then backed the proposal of Rep. Cox (Democrat) that the appropriations committee be ordered to decide whether WPA was "fish or fowl, sane or insane, good or bad."

And with the Democrats divided thus, some Republicans hinted there might be a compromise.

Tax Tinkering.

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau had decided that the legal limit on the national debt need not be raised from $45,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000 until next year.

John and Mary Doe filed their income tax reports, and the president told newsmen consolidation of five corporation taxes was being considered, but he made it clear that he didn't want the government's income reduced.

Many congressmen favored prompt tax legislation to help business. Stock exchange spokesmen told New Dealers that simplification of registration statements and sharper definition of manipulation rules would help business, too. SEC Chairman William O. Douglas, however, dubbed their statement "phoney."

Congress ground away, all the while, on routine and defense measures. And the publicity given the latter inspired inventors to swamp the war department with fresh ideas. One man, for instance, proposed a gargantuan railroad to transport the U. S. fleet from coast to coast on dry land.

At Home

Collective Negotiating.

CIO's John L. Lewis dickered in New York this week with both AFL and the soft coal industry.

He wanted to merge AFL and CIO in a new American Congress of Labor. But AFL seemed loathe to abandon its 1937 plan to get CIO unions back under its wing, and President Greene declared his federation never would be "liquidated" for anybody.

With the coal operators, Lewis was bargaining for 350,000 Appalachian area miners, whose contract expires March 31.

Latin American Dept.

Efforts to settle the Mexican oil controversy continued this week. And the action of Bolivia's supreme court last week-end, upholding expropriation of Standard Oil properties there, presented the U. S. with another such problem.

Determined, however, to go on being a good neighbor, the Roosevelt administration (1) lined up congressional support for Sen. Key Pittman's proposal that the U. S. help arm Latin American countries, and (2) let newsmen hint that economic understandings similar to the Brazilian agreement last week might be reached with Uruguay, Chile and Paraguay.

No More Pneumonia?

The lives of more than 100,000 Americans will be saved each year if Dr. Charles F. McKhann, associate professor at Harvard's Medical school, is correct. This week he described the drug sulfapyridine—discovered by a Briton last year—and said that if victims are treated with it, "people just won't die from pneumonia any more."

Jackie's Jack.

Lawyers said Wednesday that Jackie ("The Kid") Coogan would get only about $150,000 in a settlement of his suit against his mother and step-father. Still wondering what had become of most of the $4,000,000 he believes he earned in his childhood, Coogan went on trying to land a job.

Nature's Pranks.

Two weeks ago part of a California hill broke off and started across country. By last Sunday, this mass of earth, 125 feet high and a quarter mile wide, had strayed 1½ miles—but, as crowds went to see the mountain move, it slowed down. Recent earth tremors were believed to have started it and wet clay to have kept it coasting. Fearing it might open a gas pocket, authorities posted "no smoking" signs.

Spring officially arrives next Tuesday, because the earth's axis then will be at right angles to the direction of the sun. From then until the autumnal equinox, Sept. 23, the axis will be tilted so that the northern half of the world will get more light than the southern half.

Prof. Albert Einstein: "As long as Fascism rules in Europe there will be no peace."

Chancellor Hitler: "The wise victor will if possible always impose his claim on the defeated people, stage by stage . . ."

Prime Minister Chamberlain: "Though we may have to suffer checks and disappointments from time to time, the object we have in mind is of too great significance—the happiness of mankind—for us lightly to give it up or set it on one side."

Abroad

'Viva Il Papa!'

The origin of papal coronations is not known. The custom dates back many centuries, and a jeweled tiara, or triple crown, has come to be the insignia of St. Peter's successors. Last Sunday, a tiara about 15 inches high, topped by a diamond cross, was placed on the head of Pius XII.

Never before had so many people—possibly 500,000—seen a coronation. And never before had the whole world been able to hear, by radio, the long, solemn ceremony.

China's Money War.

Japan's war in China is fundamentally a fight for business. It has cost tens of thousands of lives and millions of dollars. Whether this "investment" will pay or not depends on whether the Chinese will buy Japanese goods and work for Japanese entrepeneurs.

To swing North China into line, the Nipponese recently forbade its people to use the central Chinese government's currency. Great Britain, France and the U. S. protested. And Chinese guerrillas threatened the lives of everyone caught using the money the Japanese were trying to substitute. Reporters noted no rush to exchange the old for the new money — possibly because there aren't enough Japanese in China to enforce such orders, and guerrillas seem to bob up all over the map.

Bigwigs' Birthdays.

Tuesday was Prof. Albert Einstein's 60th birthday. In an interview, he revealed he has found a "unifying mathematical concept" to explain all the phenomena of the material universe."

Wednesday was Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes' 65th birthday. In the past year he has been a bridegroom, boss of PWA's expenditure of a billion and a half dollars, and a participant in many stormy verbal battles. On his birthday he was fighting for a fifth national park in California.

Friday—St. Patrick's day—was Supreme Court Justice Pierce Butler's 73rd birthday. His father was born on St. Patrick's day, too—and was named Patrick. The jurist was born in a log cabin, became a railroad lawyer, and was made a justice by President Harding.

Gandhi's Rival.

India's nationalistic All-India Congress is united in its drive to unhorse the remaining 700 Indian princes, maharajas and rajahs and win Indian independence from Britain: but it's divided on its own leadership. Rival leaders are mild, toothless Mohandas Gandhi and fiery, radical Subhas Bose. In January, Bose beat a Gandhi candidate to become Congress president. But Gandhi won a round recently when the Congress voted "no confidence" in Bose.

Brideless Wedding.

Two Mohammedan kingdoms, Egypt and Iran, were linked by the marriage this week of Egyptian Princess Fawzia, 17, to Persia's crown prince, Mohamed Riza Pahlevi, 19. No women, no even the bride, attended the ceremony Wednesday in Cairo. Every guest got a jeweled gold box of chocolates costing $1,000. Festivities will continue for weeks.
